RECORD
OF THE
CLASS OF 1852
YALE COLLEGE,
FOR THE QUARTER CENTURY
AFTER GRADUATION.

PRINTED FOR THE USE OF THE CLASS.

NEW HAVEN:
TUTTLE, MOREHOUSE & TAYLOR, PRINTERS
1878

The publication of this RECORD has been delayed longer than was intended, partly because the compiler could not command the time to prepare it earlier, and partly in the hope of obtaining fuller information respecting some from whom no full reports had been for a long time received. This hope has been in a measure realized, and so far the delay has been a gain. But several letters have brought no replies, and it must still be said of several of the class, "not heard from." Some who examine the following pages will therefore be sure to find many a "hiatus valde defendendus," and doubtless many an error that might have been avoided. Those who are able to supply omissions, or to correct errors, are especially requested to communicate promptly with the Class Secretary. He would also be glad to learn of any important events occurring in the life-history of any of our number. It will be seen that several such events of recent date are included in this RECORD.

The next general meeting of the class will be held in 1882. Come all, and bring the wives and children too.

QUARTER CENTENNIAL MEETING

OF THE

CLASS OF 1852,

JUNE 27, 1877.

In preparation for this meeting the following circular was issued, and a copy sent to each member of the class.

YALE COLLEGE—CLASS OF 1852.

CLASSMATES: At our last annual reunion, in 1872, it was voted to hold the Quarter Centennial meeting in 1877. It is therefore hoped that all members of the class will, if possible, revisit their Alma Mater on the day before the next Commencement, Wednesday, June 27, 1877. The wives and children of '52 will also be welcome.

Each one who receives this circular is requested to acknowledge the receipt of it, by writing promptly to the Acting Secretary, stating whether he may be expected at the meeting, and whether any of his family will accompany him; also to give seasonable notice of any subsequent change in his plans.

A full and accurate account of every member of the class, from graduation to the present time, will give special interest to the meeting. To aid in obtaining such accounts a series of questions is contained on this circular, and it is specially desired that all will prepare and send in their replies as early as convenient, whether they do or do not expect to participate personally in our gathering.

Those who attend the meeting will confer a favor if they will report in person at Room No. 3, Old State House, as soon as practicable after arriving in New Haven.

Both of our Class Secretaries having removed from Connecticut to other States, the undersigned, at their request, has undertaken for the present to perform their duties. All replies and communications should be addressed to him.

Please accept the hearty greetings of

“Your Friend and Classmate,”

JOHN G. BAIRD.

NEW HAVEN, March 15, 1877.

A preliminary meeting was held at the room in the State House above indicated, on Wednesday at 12 o'clock, Crapo presiding. After the Acting Class Secretary had stated what arrangements had been made, a business committee of three was appointed, Ross was selected to take direction of the subsequent meeting, and Baird was chosen Class Secretary. The class then adjourned to meet again at 5 P. M. at Baird's residence, Temple st.

Twenty-nine of our number were there present, viz: Baird, A. Bigelow, D. S. Bigelow, Bliss, Brewer, Cooper, Crapo, Cutter, DuBois, H. E. Dwight, Elderkin, Goodhue, Green, C. L. Hall, Hollowell, Helmer, Ives, Lewis, Lounsbury, Lyon, Miller, Payne, Robinson, Ross, Smith, Sprague, Sterling, Storrs and Wood.

There were also present the wives of Baird, Crapo, DuBois, H. E. Dwight, Elderkin, Howe (now Mrs. Bassett), Ives, Miller, Payne, Robinson, Sterling and Storrs. The children of the class were represented by two daughters of H. E. Dwight, two of Howe, one each of Lyon and Sprague, and the oldest sons of A. Bigelow and Miller. The whole company numbered about fifty.

When two or three social hours had sped away, and the good things of the table had received due attention, we were prepared to hear how time and Providence had dealt with the scattered members of '52. The first thing on this part of the programme was the singing of the following

RE-UNION ODE.

BY ALBERT BIGELOW.

AIR—"Sparkling and Bright."

- 1 Well neighbors, who are you--and you—
 You gray-streaked, spectacled fellows?
 Why! what! that you, of Yale Fifty-two?
 Here is a hand! How are you? Come tell us.

CHORUS.

Gather up old boys, let's spare no noise,
 Sing out, one and all, not caring
 Whether harmony floats, or discord's notes
 Seem "out to take an air-ing."

- 2 We? we are men who once, ah! when?
 Marched briskly, shoulder to shoulder;
 But now the road o'er we journey, well! slower
 Because you know, fellows, we're older.
Chorus—Yet jog along, boys, and spare no noise, &c.

3 Here, in the ways which in by-gone days
 We gaily trod, we gather,
 And, as we walk, of the old times talk,
Old times? of the young times, rather.
Chorus—Still, don't stop, boys, come, spare no noise, &c.

4 Oh! how the years, with their joys and tears,
 Their work and rest, have hastened!
 Till the twenty-fifth one, with this day done,
 Finds even the jolliest, chastened.
Chorus—But no matter, boys, come, spare no noise, &c.

5 Yet looking round not all are found!
 Twenty-three can never meet us!
 When their names we call, it is silence—all.
 Oh! would they were here to greet us.

CHORUS.

So now, dear boys, with low hushed voice,
 For the dead, in our warm hearts, caring,
 Let us sing and weep o'er the many who sleep,
 Ne'er to wake, for earthly faring.

6 Loudly again, let us sing of the men
 Around whose forms memory hovers;
 Who though not here, to partake our cheer,
 Of old Fifty-two are lovers.
Chorus—And again, old boys, let's spare no noise, &c.

7 Now, let the song, as it rolls along,
 Ring out the matchless praises
 Of the fair and dear, who are there, who are here!
 Their worth, their gifts, their graces.
Chorus—And here, old boys, make the loudest noise, &c.

8 Yet, come all, both great and small,
 Come, Governors, Doctors, Prexes,
 Profs, Revs, M.D's, Esquires, M.C's,
All sorts from Maine to Texas.

CHORUS.

And sing it out boys, with a brave old noise,
 That while we live, we'll never
 This song of praise cease gaily to raise,
 "Old Fifty-two forever!"

Bigelow's voice rang out as cheerily as in college days, and the whole company, led by Cutter, joined in the chorus.

Each of those present then related briefly his story of the years gone by, and letters were read from about twenty of the absent, some of whom had been unexpectedly prevented from coming to our gathering. Reports of some kind were received from nearly all.

In the course of the evening, Hallowell read the Quarter-Centennial Ode, printed on pages 10-12, which he had written for this meeting, and which was so cordially received that by unanimous and hearty request it was read a second time before we separated.

Shortly after the city clocks had sounded the midnight hour, with sobered hearts and subdued voices we sang, to "Auld Lang Syne," the following song, entitled

FIFTY-TWO.

BY C. D. HELMER.

- 1 O Brotherhood of days of yore!
 In Youth's fresh morning dew:
 O years that shall come back no more!
 The days of Fifty-two;
 ||: Our hearts do still remember them,
 Bright days of Fifty-two. :||
- 2 We count them—five and twenty years!
 And can it all be true?
 We look far back through smiles and tears
 To joyous Fifty-two:
 ||: We dream—and we are young again
 In jolly Fifty-two. :||
- 3 A dream it is! we have not been
 So many years from you;
 Old Halls so dim and Campus green!
 We yet are Fifty-two—
 ||: The years have only rolled them round
 Their center—Fifty-two. :||
- 4 We spread the map of all the world,
 The olden and the new;
 And lo! from every land unfurled
 Come back our Fifty-two;
 ||: Come solid, strong and well-tried men,
 The Boys of Fifty-two. :||

- 5 We come through Winter, for the snows
 On locks once dark of hue
 Have blown ; but in our hearts still glows
 The Spring of Fifty-two ;
 ||: All bright, and beautiful, and fresh,
 Immortal Fifty-two. :||
- 6 Our boys and girls, young men and maids,
 And wives so fair and true,
 That knew us not amid these shades
 In old-time Fifty-two,
 ||: With other honors, wealth, and spoils,
 Enrich our Fifty-two. :||
- 7 But some come not : O Brothers dear !
 We call in vain to you ;
 Departed ones, we drop a tear
 For you of Fifty-two ;
 ||: Our hearts are shadowed dark with grief,
Oh ! Dead of Fifty-two ! :||
- 8 As soldiers, pausing in the fight
 A moment, turn to view
 Their comrades to the left and right,
 So we of Fifty-two
 ||: Look round upon each other here,
 Surviving Fifty-two. :||
- 9 Each well-known face, though changed, the same
 We once as Freshmen knew,
 Glows kindly still : we call each name
 Enrolled in Fifty-two,
 ||: And titled though they be to-day
 They sound like Fifty-two. :||
- 10 Then gather, Classmates, close once more
 In friendship strong and true ;
 Clasp hands as in the days of yore,
 Those days of Fifty-two,
 ||: And ere we part pledge hand and heart
 For aye to Fifty-two ! :||
- 11 And as the years bear one by one
 Beyond all mortal view,
 May each man's work be nobly done—
 Each man of Fifty-two ;
 ||: And in that land to which we go
 Remember Fifty-two. :||

Those of the present college faculty who were instructors of '52, had been invited to meet once more with the class. There are but three of these: ex-Pres. Woolsey, President Porter, and Prof. Thacher. President Woolsey sent a note regretting his inability to come, President Porter looked in upon us for a few minutes, and Prof. Thacher was unavoidably detained by the duties of hospitality to guests in his own house.

No meeting of the class has ever been more thoroughly enjoyed, and several expressed their gratification in the warmest terms. The presence of so many of the wives and children, all entering heartily into the spirit of the occasion, contributed to the common enjoyment. Mr. Allen G. Bigelow, of Buffalo, N. Y., in behalf of the sons and daughters of the class who were present, expressed in few but earnest words, their pleasure in what they had seen and heard at this re-union. Ross presided with his characteristic tact, and the success of the meeting was largely due to him. We parted, at length, glad that we had met, and sad that we must go, but in the hope of many another pleasant re-union in coming years.

We are indebted to Hallowell for the following account of the

RE-PLANTING OF THE CLASS IVY.

One of the most interesting events connected with our re-union, but unfortunately participated in by a few only, was the replanting of the Class Ivy. That around which we had gathered so long ago, rich in tender memories, had disappeared. The date was not placed above it at the time, and it was impossible to fix the exact spot. Several of the class were sure they knew the precise place, but as they differed as to the locality themselves, those seeking it were no wiser than before. The wife of one of our members (W. W. C.), who is thoroughly imbued with the class spirit, and feels herself to be one of us, suggested that this uncertainty should no longer exist, and proposed celebrating the Quarter Centennial by procuring another plant.

The idea was enthusiastically endorsed by those to whom she mentioned it, and Mrs. C. having ordered the Ivy, with a laborer and an abundant supply of rich and mellow soil, we assembled on Friday morning, just before our departure from the loved scenes of long ago, and quietly and feelingly placed it in a suitable corner of the Library Building, near where the first was planted. The Class Secretary was requested to have the date cut in the stone, which has since been done.

There were present Mr. and Mrs. Crapo, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Hallowell, and C. L. Hall, with an English stranger attracted to the spot by the novel scene. But few words were said, but each heart pulsed with tenderer and deeper feelings of affectionate regard for the members of the class, present and absent, and for dear old Yale and all connected with her.

The Class Ivy stands in the angle of the Library Building, just north of the door leading into the room formerly occupied by the Library of the Calliopean Society. The figures "1852" were cut, the same day, in a suitable stone of the foundation wall. They are engraved so deep that "time's effacing fingers" cannot soon obliterate them, and there we hope they will be read by coming generations, long after the last survivor of the class has been numbered with the starred.

The following lines concerning the Ivy were received from DuBois, under date of August 4, 1877:

"I enclose price of cutting the date, for this reason: Mrs. Crapo, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. DuBois got up this thing, Mrs. C. making the suggestion. So Mrs. D. wants to pay for the date, and Mrs. Miller is represented by her brother, Hallowell, in the account enclosed, which he sent to me. Thus the three ladies are now represented in the Ivy."

The Class Ivy is a healthy and vigorous plant, and already, in a single year, it has made good progress in its upward journey. As it shall cling to and adorn the Library wall through many coming years, so will the class of '52 honor and cherish Alma Mater as long as hearts shall beat and memory shall endure.

QUARTER-CENTENNIAL ODE.

CLASS OF 1852, YALE.

JUNE 27, 1877.

BY HENRY C. HALLOWELL.

When lurid storms of war hung o'er the land,
 And lightnings flashed, and harsh artillery
 Awakened Echo from her drowsy haunts
 In Alleghany's rugged slopes, and mid
 The riven crests and steeps of Cumberland,
 And scattered all the pleasant trains of Peace,
 With frighted face, from Shenandoah's vales,
 And where Potomac rolls 'mid wooded banks,
 And from the valleys of the fervent South,
 We oftimes saw the serried ranks of men,
 Some with the Blue, and some the sober Gray,
 Go forth with steady tramp and firm, while high
 Resolve to do or die, illumed each face.
 Banners fair and stirring drums, pealing bells
 And wafted partings from the loved and young,
 Went with them in their march to the unknown.

And soon their forms were lost amid the roar
 And rush and turmoil of the battle field.
 First one and then another fell away,
 And shut his eyes on sun and sky and life.
 The closing ranks still bravely faced the front
 And pressed their tattered banners high aloft.
 At length there came a pause, and resting from
 The fierce ordeal, they gaze upon each face,
 And see the changes written there by scar,
 And wound, and weary march, and silent grief
 For comrades mustering now with them no more,
 But sleeping 'neath the grassy mounds, or far Remote on other duty, or sick and Wounded, tossing on a feverish couch.
 Kind words of sympathy and praise and love
 Are interchanged, but ere the friendly hands
 Have ceased their grasp, the bugle sounds the notes
 Of preparation, and once more they go
 To act their part as best they may, till death.

And so, my Classmates, has it been with us !
 How bright the morning when with joyous hearts
 We left these scenes of peace so dearly loved !
 With music, and with flowers in our paths,
 And heartfelt earnest prayers from true and good,
 We sallied forth, robust and strong, with forms
 Erect, and eyes that shone with faith and hope.
 The noble Silliman, and Woolsey kind
 And learned, and Kingsley with his silver locks,
 And Olmsted, dignified and ever true,
 And others whose examples and whose words
 Might well prepare us for the work of life,
 Gave us their blessings as we left these groves,
 Amid whose leafy shades our days were spent.

And so we parted ! Some the ocean crossed,
 And some in distant isles the savage taught.
 All toiled and labored. But alas ! How soon
 Our ranks were broken ! North, the first to fall,
 In far Kentucky rested from his work
 Ere one short twelvemonth winged its flight away.
 Morehouse at York soon found a watery grave ;
 The gentlemanly Atwood followed next ;
 Then Howe, the genial friend to those who knew
 Him well and looked within, closes his books ;
 Blakeslee, Hurd and Allen, King on the field,
 And Parsons 'mid the quiet scenes of home,
 And Peet and Humphrey and Mygatt, fall from
 The ranks. Alvord with ever-ready jest,
 Poor Creighton, Grube in distant Oregon,
 Bannan and Boies, and Dwight from labors for
 His fellow-man, shall hear the call no more.
 And Hall, thou gentle friend, whose kindly form
 Sat next to mine through all those busy years,
 At morn and eve, within the Chapel walls,
 Thy turn was next ; and Root no more shall pull Old Atalanta's oar ; Seropyan !
 Hovers not thy spirit here to-night ?
 Thou didst so love thy comrades and by them
 Wast so beloved, that we would fain believe
 The story of thy death, a sickening dream ;
 We'll drop a tear for thee, thou Christian Turk.
 Waring has e'en now left, the last to fall.

And so the ranks have thinned. And resting now
 A little while upon our march, we look Around on each endeared face, and note
 The changes of the passing years. Our locks
 Are thinner, and the snows besprinkled here
 And there, foretell the coming autumn, as Mid tropic growth, and golden fruits, and all
 The rich exuberance of Italia's vales,
 Some mountain peak with glittering carpet spread,
 Presages winter while all else is fair.
 The lines of grief are marked on some, and some
 Are weighted with the cares of State, and some
 In all the varied paths of life have done
 A noble duty. But a high resolve,
 And thought and dignity, have amply paid
 For the small ravages of pilfering Time,
 In faces manly, earnest, honest, true.

Of those whom duty elsewhere calls to-night,
 And those who ne'er shall hear her summons more,
 We think with fond remembrance. Soon for us,
 The bugle note to march, again shall sound.
 Strengthened, by mingling thus, for coming toil,
 We go with hearts o'erflowing. Eyes grow dim
 At parting. But the joyous memory of
 This glad re-union, binding up again
 The ties long sundered, shall amid the heat
 And din of coming contests, nerve our hands
 To strike for truth and right and all that's good.

The clock of Time has marked the Quarter of A Century, since that bright morning when
 We said farewell. When next its tones are heard,
 Who of us all shall meet to note the day!
 It matters not. If, as we daily march,
 We love our fellows, have charity for
 All (for all see not with us), put love of Country, where too oft the love of party,
 And of section finds an abiding place;
 If kindly courtesy and lasting trust
 In virtue, God and man, have been our guide,
 Then, whether soon or late the summons comes
 To stack our arms, we'll hear the sentinel,
 My Classmates, give the cheering cry, "All's well!"

ROCKLAND FARM, SANDY SPRING, Maryland.

CLASS OF 1852.

NOTE.—The time of entering was the beginning of Freshman year, and the place of residence was the same as the birth place, unless otherwise stated.

* MYRON OLIVER ALLEN,

Only child of Rev. David O. Allen, D.D. (Amherst, 1823,) and Myra (Wood) Allen, was born Feb. 5, 1831, in Bombay, India, where his parents were missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M. His mother dying on the day of his birth, he was brought to America while yet an infant, and passed his earlier years with relatives in Westminster and Lowell, Mass. He fitted for college at the High School in Lowell, and entered resident in that city. The disease which finally terminated his life caused his absence from college the first half of Sophomore, and two-thirds of Senior year. During the two years following graduation he studied at the Pennsylvania Medical College in Philadelphia, where he received the degree of M.D. in 1854, and was for a short time Demonstrator of Anatomy. In 1855 he established himself in his profession at Wenham, Mass., where he was especially active in promoting the religious and educational interests of the community. He wrote a history of Wenham, which was published by the town in a 12mo. volume of 220 pages. His disease gradually increased till he could no longer perform his professional duties, and in October, 1860, he removed to his father's house in Lowell, to await the inevitable result. Lingering for months while life slowly ebbed away, he was enabled by Christian faith to rise above the fear of death and to overcome it in the full assurance of eternal life. In earlier years he had struggled long with skeptical doubts, but these had now vanished, and he longed for his departure to the land of rest, to which he passed away, August 1, 1861.

He married in May, 1858, Miss Susan P. Barnes of Wenham, but had no children. Mrs. Allen is now the wife of Dr. G. W. Doane, of Hyannis, Mass.

* EDWARD JESUP ALVORD,

Only son of Jesup and Susan Alvord, was born at Southport, in the town of Fairfield, Conn., March 28, 1831, and fitted for college in his native town. After graduation he studied law for eight months with Hon. Thomas B. Osborne of Fairfield, (Yale, 1817,) who was Professor of Law in Yale, 1855-65. He then became Principal first of the Fairfield Academy and afterward of the graded school in Southport, and was thus employed for four years. He continued during this time the study of law, and was admitted to the bar of Fairfield County, Oct. 16, 1858. He commenced the practice of his profession at Southport, where he remained with steadily increasing success till his death. In 1862 he represented the town of Fairfield in the Legislature of Connecticut. He was appointed by President Lincoln Commissioner on the Board of Enrollment for the 4th District of Connecticut, created under Act of Congress providing for calling out the national forces, which office he held during 1864-65. He also held the office of Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for two or three years.

He married, June 15, 1859, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Bulkley, daughter of Walter Bulkley, of Southport. Their three children were, Sarah Bulkley, born March 28, 1860, died May 8, 1860; Edward Jesup, born May 22, 1863, died Sept. 21, 1868; Walter Bulkley, born June 22, 1865, died June 30, 1865. Mrs. Alvord died June 20, 1866.

The death of Alvord's last surviving child, in September, 1868, was a crushing blow. Those who were present at the class meeting in 1867 will remember how tenderly he spoke of his beloved boy. In a letter to an intimate friend, written a few days after his bereavement, he said, "Every step I take brings something to my notice to remind me of my dear boy, and I am inexpressibly sad, for all that was beautiful and attractive to me in life seems to have been buried in that little grave. Were it not that my parents are now so aged, and my father so infirm, I think I would cross the ocean and spend the winter in Europe." But very soon he was attacked by the same disease that had removed his child. Exhausted and broken-hearted, he fell an easy prey, and died October 16, 1868. He had become, by gradual and sure steps, a truly religious man, and it was his intention some time previous to his sickness, to make a public profession of his faith. Before his death he was baptised and partook of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, declaring at the time that he desired all to know that he publicly professed himself a disciple of Christ.

*JAMES ATWOOD

Was born at Huntsville, Ala., July 4, 1832, and entered the class in January, 1850. After leaving college he studied law in his native place with Messrs. Robinson & Jones. Having been admitted to the bar, he removed in November, 1853, to New Orleans, where he continued the study of his profession, intending to commence practice in that city. He received there a lucrative appointment under the Paymaster General of the U. S. Army, and was highly commended for the discharge of his duties in that position. He died of yellow fever, at New Orleans, October, 5, 1854, after an illness of five days. His classmates, and all who knew him, will long remember him as invariably a true gentleman. The promise of a brilliant and successful career was blighted, and many hopes were quenched forever, when Atwood was so early and suddenly snatched away.

JOHN GUNN BAIRD,

Son of Jonah N. Baird, was born in Milford, Conn., Nov. 27, 1826, and fitted for college at the Milford High School. During the two years after graduation he taught school at Ellington, Conn. In September, 1854, he entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., where he graduated in August, 1857. In December following he became a resident student at the Yale Theological Seminary, and there continued for more than a year, preaching meanwhile for longer or shorter periods, at various places in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. In the Spring of 1859 he accepted a call to the Second Church of Saybrook, Ct., where he was ordained and installed June 2, 1859. He resigned his pastorate, and was dismissed at his own request, November 1, 1865. Soon after he removed to New Haven, expecting ere long to resume pastoral work. In the interval he became connected with the State Educational Department, then recently reorganized, with D. C. Gilman of '52 in charge. For several years an irritation of the throat had caused him much trouble in public speaking, and in the autumn of 1867 the difficulty was so aggravated that he was compelled, reluctantly, to give up the expectation of being again settled in the ministry. He has accordingly continued at New Haven as Assistant to the Secretary of the State Board of Education. A few articles from his pen, mostly on educational subjects, have been published in New Haven papers, educational journals, and in Johnson's Cyclopedia; and considerable portions of the Connecticut School Reports since 1866 have been prepared by him. The office in which he is employed is soon to be removed to the new Capitol in Hartford, thus necessitating his removal thither, and his future residence will probably be in that city.

He married, June 15, 1859, Miss Eliza Hall, daughter of Hon. John Hall, of Ellington, Conn. They have no children.

* DOUGLASS RIDGWAY BANNAN,

Son of John and Sarah Bannan, was born at Orwigsburgh, Schuylkill County, Penn., March 6, 1832, and entered the class the third term of Freshman year, May, 1849. In September, 1853, he commenced the study of medicine, and during the two following winters attended lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, receiving there the degree of M.D. in 1856. He afterward spent two years in Paris, in the completion of his studies, and then established himself at Philadelphia. On the 22d of July, 1861, he entered the service of the government as Assistant Surgeon, U. S. N., and remained in that service till his death, having risen to the rank of Surgeon. During the war he served on the U. S. Steamer Brandywine, off Fortress Monroe, and at Norfolk, Va.; also on the Mississippi River; and he was in the Gunboat Carondelet when she passed the Vicksburg batteries. In Sept., 1865, he sailed for Europe to join the U. S. Squadron in the Mediterranean. He was on board the ship Franklin during the cruise of Admiral Farragut, abroad, embracing a period of about seventeen months, in 1867-68, during which time he visited nearly every country in Europe, and touched at ports in Asia and Africa. Soon after his return, in 1868, he was stationed, for about a year, at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, then for a short time at Mound City, (near Cairo,) Illinois, and afterward for nearly two years at the Navy Yard in Pensacola, Florida. In the summer of 1871, he was transferred to the Charlestown Navy Yard, at Boston, where he died, after three days illness, on the 13th of November, 1871. His body was interred at Pottsville, Penn., now the home of his nearest relatives. He was not married.

CHARLES HENRY BARRETT,

Son of Ephraim Barrett, was born in Camden, Maine, February 4, 1821, and prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. From September, 1852, to May, 1855, he was a student in the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, during which time he made two short sea voyages. He was licensed to preach, but never ordained to the ministry. After graduating at the Seminary, he resumed the business of his earlier years, and till 1869 his chief occupation was navigating the seas as master of a merchant ship, his voyages being mostly to China and California, though he visited nearly every part of the globe. During the war he was for a few months in the service of the Christian Commission, and was with the fleet at the taking of Fort Fisher. His home during these years of sea life was in New York, Philadelphia, and East Orange, N. J. Since 1870 he has had about two years of sea service, his voyages having been to the West Indies, Gulf of Mexico, Liverpool, New Zealand and Australia. For a few years past the condition of his health has unfitted him for the duties of a shipmaster, and for any continued mental labor, so that his life "has been of a somewhat miscellaneous character."

He married, at New Haven, Conn., April 8, 1861, Miss Elizabeth G. Barber, daughter of John W. Barber. Their daughter, Ruth Louise Barrett, was born January 25, 1862. Mrs. Barrett died of cholera on shipboard in the China Sea, July 19, 1863, and was buried in the deep. The infant daughter, who was also on board the ship, was thus left to the sole care of the father, but for a short time only, as she died at Bangkok, Siam, November 5, 1863. Mrs. Barrett was a lady of unusual literary ability. A volume of her poems was published after her death, by Hurd & Houghton, of New York. One of these poems is entitled "The Burial at Sea." Capt. Barrett married a second time, Sept. 12, 1870, Miss Ella J. McCanon, of Bennington, Wyoming Co., N. Y. They have one daughter, born January 26, 1872. Mrs. Barrett is a graduate of the New York Homœopathic College for Women, and is in the successful practice of the medical profession at Oakland, California, where they now reside.

GOODLOE BOWMAN BELL

Son of Samuel Bell, was born in Reading, Penn., in June, 1832, and fitted for college at Gen. Russell's Collegiate and Commercial Institute, New Haven. He studied law for a year after leaving college, and was then for a time engaged in business. From March to September, 1856, he was traveling in Europe. On his return he entered the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, where he graduated in May, 1859. He was stated supply of the Presbyterian Church at Manhattanville, N. Y., for three months, and was then invited to become pastor of the North (Presbyterian) Church, of Hardyston, Sussex Co., N. J. Having been ordained at Norristown, Penn., in October, 1859, by the Fourth Presbytery of Philadelphia, which had licensed him six months previous, he removed to Hardyston, where he remained pastor till September, 1864. He then took charge of the Chapel of "The Brick Church" in New York City, and retained it until 1867, when he was called to the Presbyterian Church in Ramapo, N. Y. In April, 1871, he was installed over the Seventh Presbyterian Church in New York City, of which he continued pastor till October, 1874, when he removed to Napanock, Ulster County, N. Y., and took charge of the church in that place, which is still his home.

He married, in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 11, 1860, Miss Annie Augustine, only daughter of E. J. Austin. Their daughter, Augustine Austin, was born August 13, 1861.

ALBERT BIGELOW,

Son of Samuel Allen and Maria M. Bigelow, was born in the town of Stafford, near LeRoy village, Genesee Co., N. Y., October 11, 1827. In 1830 he became a resident of Buffalo, N. Y., where, after nearly three years' study of law, he fitted for college and whence he entered, in 1848. After graduation, he studied for the ministry with his pastor, Rev. Dr. M. L. P. Thompson, of the First Presbyterian Church, Buffalo. He was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Buffalo, Sept. 20, 1854; became stated supply of the Presbyterian Church, North Bergen, Genesee Co., N. Y., Dec. 10, 1854, and was ordained and installed pastor of the same church, in October, 1855. In the autumn of 1856 he was installed pastor of the Ainslie st. Presbyterian Church, Williamsburgh (Brooklyn, E. D.), N. Y.; and in October, 1858, of the Presbyterian and Congregational Church, Homer, Cortland Co., N. Y. He became pastor-elect of the First Congregational Church, Jackson, Mich., in 1863, remaining such, without accepting installation, till the autumn of 1865, when, after a short period of rest, he took pastoral charge of the Presbyterian Church, Silver Creek, Chautauque Co., N. Y., continuing the same for five years. During 1870 and 1871, having relinquished pastoral work on account of serious deafness, he was District Secretary for Western New York, of the American Seamen's Friend Society, becoming again, as he has been ever since, a resident of Buffalo.

Since 1872, though constantly supplying churches in Buffalo and vicinity as a preacher, with occasional voluntary pastoral labor, he has accepted no pastoral charge, on account of his infirmity of hearing, and the pressure of various business cares which have come upon him. For several years, from 1867, he turned his attention to portrait painting as recreation, and in some measure, employment, in which he was successful; though for a few years past other cares have interrupted and prevented this pleasant labor.

He married at Buffalo, April 18, 1853, Miss Maria Storrs, daughter of Lucius Storrs, and has three sons: Allen Gilman, born March 14, 1854; Walter Storrs, born in Williamsburgh, September 26, 1857; and Lucius Seymour, born in Homer, September 6, 1859. These three young men constitute the firm of "Bigelow Brothers," and have started a promising business as printers in Buffalo. They also inherit the paternal taste and talent for music. The oldest, Allen, will be pleasantly remembered by all who attended the class meeting in 1877.

DAVID SKINNER BIGELOW,

Only child of Jonathan G. Bigelow, was born in Westchester, in the town of Colchester, Conn., April 3, 1829, and prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He has always lived in his native place, where he owns and carries on an extensive grazing farm. His fellow citizens of Colchester have repeatedly elected him to important local offices. In 1863 he represented the town in the Legislature of Connecticut, he has been for several years an efficient member of the town school board, and in various ways he is active in promoting the best interests of the community.

He married at Westchester, November 9, 1852, Miss Abby M. Usher, and they have had four sons, of whom three are now living: Amatus Robbins, the "class boy," born September 18, 1853; a son (not named,) born September 10, 1860, died December 7, 1860; Jonathan Cone, born May 24, 1862; David Skinner, born September 6, 1868. At the Quarter-Centennial Meeting the class boy was inquired for, and his father replied that he had "married a wife and could not come."

JOEL FOOTE BINGHAM,

Son of Cyrus Bingham, was born in Andover, Conn., October 11, 1827. He fitted for college under private tutors, at Cleveland, Ohio, and entered resident in Andover. Soon after graduation he established the "Classical Gymnasium," a High School for Boys, at the Bible House in New York City. He presided there till 1858, but gave himself to the study of the modern languages, and visited the continent of Europe in 1854. Having pursued theological studies in connection with Union Seminary, N. Y., he was licensed to preach by the Tolland Co. Association, in June, 1855, and ordained by an Ecclesiastical Council (Congregational) at Coventry, Conn., in June, 1856. From December, 1858, to May, 1860, he was pastor of the Congregational Church in Goshen, Conn. In July, 1860, he was offered the Principalship of the Buffalo, (N. Y.) Female Seminary, but declined the offer, as he preferred to remain in the ministry. During the latter part of 1860 and the beginning of 1861 he preached for the Second Presbyterian Church in Cleveland, Ohio. In May, 1861, he was elected Professor of Sacred Rhetoric in the Lind Theological Seminary at Chicago, but declined for the reason above given. In July, 1861, he was called to the pastorate of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Buffalo, where he remained till the autumn of 1867, when he became pastor of the South Congregational Church in Augusta, Maine. In 1870 he decided to enter the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. This step, in his case, was not a change of religious opinion, but a return to the church of his ancestry, in which he was born, but separated by unpro-pitious circumstances in early life. From 1871 to 1874, he was rector of St. John's Church, Portsmouth, N. H. In the spring of 1875 he became Associate Rector of St. John's Church, Waterbury, Conn., and Rector of the same, April 2, 1877. He has published several sermons and other pamphlets, and a volume entitled "The Christian Marriage Ceremony." He received the degree of D.D. from Western Reserve College in 1869.

He was married, in Hartford, Conn., July 14, 1857, to Miss Susan Elizabeth Grew. Their two children are Theodore Alfred, born May 14, 1858, and Howard H. C., born Dec. 5, 1862. The older entered Yale in 1872 as a member of the class of 1876, but in the beginning of his Senior year he was appointed cadet in the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, where he belongs to the class of 1879.

* HENRY CLAY BLAKESLEE,

Son of Almon Blakeslee, was born in New Haven, Conn., Jan. 21, 1831, and fitted for college at the Hopkins Grammar School. After graduation he engaged in Engineering, and was First Assistant on the Great Western R. R. in Canada. He was afterward employed on the Chicago and Rock Island R. R. in Illinois. He died at Chicago, Aug. 19, 1857, and his body was brought to New Haven for interment.

CHARLES MILLER BLISS

Was born in Hartford, Conn., Jan. 1, 1827, and fitted for college in the Hartford High School. Having spent a few months at Hartford in miscellaneous study and reading, he went to Europe in May, 1853, and remained abroad till June, 1854. In September following he removed to Woodford, Vt., and engaged in farming and lumbering. Since 1870 his home has been at Bennington, Vt. At the *beginning of the war he entered the service of his country as sergeant of the 2d Vermont Infantry, and a few months later he became 2d Lieutenant. He participated in the first battle of Bull Run, and in several of the skirmishes and most of the battles of McClellan's Peninsular Campaign. He afterwards engaged in the work of the U. S. Sanitary Commission. He has been a frequent contributor to the newspapers in his vicinity, discussing educational, political and agricultural topics, and from August, 1870, till November, 1871, he was editor and proprietor of the Bennington Free Press, a new paper started to oppose a scheming faction in State politics, which object was successfully accomplished. From April, 1872, till January, 1875, he spent much time in Rutland attending to his business there, his residence continuing in Bennington. In the autumn of 1875 he commenced a movement for a monument to commemorate the Battle of Bennington. In the two years following he spent much time in pushing forward this movement, and also the celebration of the one-hundredth year of Vermont's existence as a State, and the Centennial of the Battle of Bennington, during the week of the 16th of August, 1877. The success of those celebrations was due largely to his efforts.

He married, Feb. 15, 1870, Miss Sarah Adell Godfrey, daughter of Samuel L. and Ruth B. Godfrey, of Bennington. They have no children.

* WILLIAM BOIES,

Son of Justus Boies, was born in Blandford, Mass., March 21, 1827. He prepared for college at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and entered resident in Northampton, Mass. After graduation he studied law at Albany, N. Y., where he was admitted to the bar in December, 1852. Soon after he entered into partnership with Judge Henry Hogeboom, of Hudson, N. Y., (Yale, 1827,) and others, and practiced law in Albany and Hudson, residing in Albany. In 1855-57 he practiced in New York city, as partner with Judge Josiah Sutherland. In 1858 he went to Chicago, but returned to New York at the close of the year, and remained there till 1868, when he removed to Northampton, Mass., and practiced his profession there till March, 1871. He then removed to Troy, N. Y., where he died suddenly, June 17, 1872. While residing in New York city he was a candidate for a Judgeship, but was not elected.

He married, at Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1859, Susan Rivington, daughter of Judge Henry Hogeboom. They had six children, of whom two only are now living. Jennie Rivington, born at Hudson, Jan. 27, 1861, died at Northampton, Nov. 19, 1869; son and daughter, (twins,) born July 24, 1862—the daughter died July 31, and the son August 3, 1862; Henry Hogeboom, born April 3, 1864; William Justus, born March 5, 1868; Rivington Ely, born April 11, 1869, died August 15, 1869.

Boies was intending to be present at the class meeting in 1872, when he was seized with paralysis, which resulted in his death. Almost the last wish he was heard to express was that he might be able to go to New Haven. At the time of his death he was a member of the Reformed Church in Hudson, and of a Presbyterian Church in Troy. His body was interred at Hudson, which city is now the home of Mrs. Boies and her two sons.

FISK PARSONS BREWER,

Oldest son of Rev. Josiah Brewer, (Yale, 1821,) and Emilia (Field) Brewer, was born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, Oct. 19, 1832. His parents, who were missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M., returned to America a few years later, and settled in New Haven, where they conducted a school for young ladies. Our classmate fitted for college at the Hopkins Grammar School (and elsewhere,) and joined the class resident in New Haven. He has been engaged in teaching most of the time since graduation. In 1852-53 he was with John Grant, Esq., at Newark, N. J. ("Tutor Grant" of our college days,) and in 1853-54 he was tutor in Beloit College, Wisconsin. He entered the Yale Theological Seminary in the autumn of 1854, and in January, 1855, he was appointed Tutor in Yale College, in which position he remained till Commencement, 1858. He then spent a year abroad, mostly in Greece, visiting also Palestine and some parts of Turkey, and returning home through Germany, France, Holland and England. He now established his home in New Haven, and lived there till 1865. He was licensed by the New Haven West Association in November, 1859, and has preached occasionally, though never ordained to the ministry. He assisted for several months in the revision of Webster's Dictionary, and for over a year taught in the Sheffield Scientific School. In 1865 he removed to Raleigh, N. C., where he was engaged in promoting education, under the auspices of the American Missionary Association. In January, 1869, he was chosen Professor of Greek in the University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill, and held that appointment till October, 1873, acting also as Librarian. Meanwhile, leaving his family there, he went as U. S. Consul to Piræus, Greece, his term of office extending from November, 1871, to July, 1873. In October of the latter year he was chosen Professor of Ancient Languages in the University of South Carolina, at Columbia. That institution being closely connected with the State government, and depending directly on the State treasury, was disorganized in consequence of the political events that occurred there in 1876-77, and the Professors, who were mostly of Northern birth, were deprived of support and compelled to resign. In July, 1877, Brewer was appointed Professor of Greek in Iowa College, Grinnell, Iowa, and now resides in that place. His health has been delicate for many years, on account of pulmonary disease, but he accomplishes a large amount of labor in studying and teaching. He has devoted much time to the study of ancient coins, and has written some descriptive notices of those in the possession of Yale College. He has also studied somewhat extensively Oriental Languages and Literature, and has occasionally presented papers before the American Oriental Society and the American Philological Association. When in North Carolina he prepared for a public journal one or more valuable articles on popular education.

He married at New Haven, Aug. 24, 1859, Miss Julia M. Richards, daughter of Rev. Wm. Richards, missionary at the Sandwich Islands. They have had eight children, of whom seven are still living. Edwin Marshall, born April 12, 1861, died Dec. 2, 1862; Helen Richards, born Aug. 14, 1862; Mary Emilia, born Dec. 3, 1863; Grace Lyman, born Oct. 7th, 1865; Lily Field, born March 19, 1868; William Fisk, born Aug. 26, 1870; Albert David, born May 10, 1874; and Charles, born April 27, 1877.

EDWARD BUCK,

Son of John Buck, was born in Orland, Hancock Co., Maine, April 17, 1829. He fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and joined the class the third term of Freshman year. He studied theology in the Seminary at Bangor, Maine, 1852-55, was licensed to preach, and supplied for a time vacant pulpits in his native State, but has never been ordained. For several years he has been in business in his native town, but has resided in the adjoining town of Bucksport.

He married Miss Emeline B. Darling, June 5, 1864, and has one child, Carl D., born Oct. 2, 1866.

LEBEUS CORNELIUS CHAPIN,

Son of Joseph Chapin, was born in Gilbertsville, Otsego Co., N. Y., in 1825. He fitted for College at Monson Academy, Mass., and joined the class in May, 1850, the third term of Sophomore year, from Amherst College, resident in Wattsburgh, Penn. From the time of graduation till December, 1854, he taught at Erie, Pa., and in New Hampshire. He then entered Yale Theological Seminary, but in September, 1855, he became Tutor in Yale College, and continued in that position till 1864. He purposed for a time to enter the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, but during the latter part of his tutorship he studied medicine, and received the degree of M.D. at Yale in 1864. In May of that year he was appointed Surgeon of the 28th Regiment U. S. Colored Troops, and soon after joined his Regiment in South Carolina. In May, 1867, he removed from New Haven to Kalamazoo, Mich., where he now lives. He is engaged in lumber manufacturing and in practicing medicine.

He married at Cincinnati, Ohio, April 25, 1859, Sallie F. Elliott of New Haven, Conn., and has four children. Fitz Henry, born Feb. 2, 1862; Francis Anderson, born Nov. 21, 1864; Mary Bell, born Nov. 3, 1866; Helen Maud, born July 10, 1868.

MIERS CLARK CONWELL

Was born at Milton, Sussex Co., Del., in 1827. After graduation he taught school and studied law at Georgetown, and Dover, Del. When last heard from he was living in Dover, engaged in civil engineering. About 1860 he was in New Haven on his wedding trip. In 1865 a circular was received from him, but as he has not responded to letters or circulars that have been sent to him, no recent information has been obtained. He is known to be still living in Dover.

JACOB COOPER,

Son of Jacob and Elizabeth Walls Cooper, was born near Somerville, Ohio, Dec. 7, 1830. He fitted for college "at the plow," and entered the class at the beginning of Junior year, September, 1850, having previously been a member for three months of Hanover College, Indiana. He studied theology a year at Oxford, Ohio, was licensed to preach August 17, 1853, and sailed soon after for Europe, where he pursued his studies in Philology and Philosophy at Berlin, Halle and Edinburgh, and received the degree of Ph.D. from the University of Göttingen in 1854. He was Professor of Greek in Centre College, Danville, Ky., from October, 1855 to July, 1866. In 1862-63 he was chaplain of the Third Kentucky Regiment U. S. Volunteers, and afterward minister of the Harmony Presbyterian Church, Danville. He was also associated with Rev. Dr. R. J. Breckenridge and others in conducting "The Danville Review," a theological and political quarterly which steadily upheld the Union cause. Since 1866 he has been Professor of Greek in Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J. He was ordained to the ministry in 1862 and has preached constantly during the subsequent years. He received the degree of J. C. D. from the University of Jena in 1873, and of D.D. from Columbia College, N. Y., in 1874.

He married Miss Caroline Macdill, (daughter of Hugh Macdill,) of Oxford, Ohio, May 31, 1855, who died Dec. 18, 1857. On the 20th of July, 1865, he married Miss Mary Linn, of Cincinnati, Ohio. He has had six children,—one by the first marriage, and five by the second,—of whom five are now living. Carrie Macdill, born June 15, 1857; Mary Elizabeth ("Bessie") born Aug. 2, 1866, died Jan. 12, 1870; William Jacob, born Dec. 14, 1868; Theodore Woolsey, born Jan. 2, 1871; Drury Walls, born Aug. 7, 1872; Levi Lane, born Dec. 14, 1875.

WILLIAM WALLACE CRAPO,

Son of Hon. Henry H. Crapo, Governor of Michigan, was born at Dartmouth, Bristol Co., Mass., May 16, 1830. Having prepared for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and the Friends' Academy, New Bedford, Mass., he entered resident in New Bedford. For two or three years after graduation he studied law with Gov. J. H. Clifford in New Bedford, and at the Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the bar in February, 1855, and elected City Solicitor in April following, which office he held for twelve or fourteen years. In 1857 he represented New Bedford in the Massachusetts Legislature, and in 1858 was nominated for the State Senate. In 1864 he delivered the historical address at the 200th anniversary of the incorporation of Dartmouth, which was printed. In 1866 he was one of the Commissioners for introducing water into New Bedford. In November, 1875 he was chosen Representative to the 44th Congress from the First District of Massachusetts, to fill a vacancy, and the next year he was reëlected for a full term. He has had an extensive and valuable practice in his profession, and has been employed in several very important cases, among them some connected with the famous Confederate cruiser "Alabama."

He married Miss Sarah A. Tappan, daughter of George Tappan of New Bedford, Jan. 22d, 1857. Their son Henry Howland Crapo was born Jan. 31, 1862; George Tappan, born March 16, 1864, died September 12, 1865; Stanford Tappan, born June 13, 1865; Anna Almy, born Nov. 10, 1866, died April 27, 1867.

* HAMILTON CREIGHTON,

Son of Robert Creighton, was born in Philadelphia, Penn., June 19, 1833, and joined the class in January, 1849, the second term of Freshman year. Soon after graduation he became a member of the firm of Robert Creighton & Co., of Philadelphia, in the wholesale dry goods importing and commission business. After the death of his father in 1863, he was occupied in settling the business. In 1867 he visited Europe for the benefit of his health, but with no permanent improvement. He died in Philadelphia, unmarried, Nov. 24, 1868.

CHARLES WILLIAM CURTISS,

Son of Solomon Curtiss, was born in Bristol, Conn., June 25, 1831. He fitted for college in Farmington, and entered resident in Southington. At the end of Freshman year he left college, but re-entered the class the second term of Junior year. After graduation he taught a year in Plainville and Bristol, Conn., then went to Europe, where he spent three years in study and travel. Returning to America, he passed the next year at home in Southington. In 1857 he went West, and taught two years in Madison, Wisconsin, acting afterwards as Professor of Chemistry and Teacher of German in the Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois, and still later spending a year as a Teacher at Dixon, Illinois. Most of the summer of 1862 he spent at his father's house, and later in that year he enlisted in Cheney's Illinois battery, for service in the civil war. During the summer of 1867 he was at his father's home in Plainville, Conn. He now lives in Cortland [DeKalb Co.], Illinois, as is stated in a note lately received from his father, but he has not replied to letters which have undoubtedly reached him.

EPHRAIM CUTTER,

Son of Dr. Benjamin and Mary Cutter, was born in Woburn, Mass., Sept. 1, 1832, and fitted for college at Warren Academy in that town. The year after graduation he taught in that Academy, and in the winter of 1853-54 attended lectures at the Harvard Medical School in Boston. The next winter he pursued medical studies at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, and the following summer with his father in Woburn. He received the degree of M.D. from Harvard University in 1856, and from the University of Penn. in 1857, and has since practiced medicine and surgery in Woburn, Cambridge and Boston. The summer of 1862 he spent in Europe, visiting many hospitals and medical schools, endeavoring to make known the medical virtues of Veratrum Viride, upon which he has written extensively. He has given special attention to diseases of the throat, and has published, beside over one hundred pamphlets, a volume on Uterine Versions and Fluxions, and has prepared for publication a work designed as an Introduction to the Principles and Practice of Laryngoscopy and Rhinoscopy, also one on the use of the microscope. He has always on hand some medical topic for special study and investigation, and the results of his studies are freely made known, for the relief of the afflicted. His most recent study, (1878,) is on the "Morphology of Consumptive Blood," upon which he has delivered illustrated lectures which may almost be said to render disease visible. He is actively interested in various efforts for the educational and religious as well as the physical welfare of those dwelling around him.

He married, Oct. 7, 1856, Rebecca Smith, daughter of Thomas V. Sullivan, and has had nine children, of whom four are now living: Benjamin, born Sept. 6, 1857; Ephraim, born Jan. 11, 1859; Thomas Sullivan, born Feb. 16, 1861, died Jan. 31, 1863; John Asburton, born June 27, 1863; Mary Whittemore, born July 11, 1865, died July 1, 1874; Rebecca Russell, born Nov. 1, 1867, died Feb. 1, 1869; Lewis Whitney, born Dec. 17, 1869, died June 26, 1874; Grace Dunning, born May 26, 1872, died Dec. 30, 1877; Edward Parker, born July 20, 1875.

ROBERT ELIJAH DAY,

Son of Elijah Day, was born at Hadlyme, in the town of East Haddam, Conn., July 11, 1828, and prepared for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. After graduation he studied law in Hartford with Messrs. Hungerford & Cone, (Yale, 1809 and 1830,) and was admitted to the bar there in September, 1855. He has continued to reside in Hartford, practicing law and attending to his extensive business interests. He is a Director in a leading Bank, several Insurance companies, and other financial institutions.

He married, June 27, 1860, Harriet N., daughter of Benjamin W.
Greene, of Hartford, who died Feb. 17, 1864, leaving one daughter.

* WILLIAM RICE DONAGHE,

Son of Dr. James Donaghe, was born in New Haven, Conn., April 26, 1830, and prepared for College in the Hopkins Grammar School. At the end of Freshman year he was compelled by ill-health to suspend study for a year. He then went to the University of Virginia, where he commenced the study of medicine. He received the degree of M.D.
from the University Medical College in New York City, in 1852, and for the next year and a half was House Surgeon in the Bellevue Hospital. He then went to Europe and spent fifteen months in Paris attending lectures and visiting hospitals. On his return he commenced the practice of medicine in New York City, where he became again connected with the University Medical College as Lecturer and Demonstrator of Anatomy, and in 1864 as Adjunct Professor of Anatomy, though never able to enter on the duties of this latter appointment. During the war he twice responded to the call for volunteer Surgeons, the last time after the battle of Fredericksburg. His health had already been impaired by his habits of close application and by severe labor, and the exposure and excitement of this service brought on disease of the brain, from which he never recovered. He died in New York City, July 18, 1866. In 1859 he received from Yale College the degree of A.M., and his name was enrolled with the class of 1852.

He married in 1856, Miss Susan B. Richardson, of Richmond, Va., who, with two daughters survives him.

JOHN BANNAN DOUGLASS,

Son of Dr. George B. Douglass, was born at Orwigsburgh, Schuylkill Co., Penn., March 9, 1832, and entered College the third term of Freshman year, May, 1849. He studied law, after graduation, in Pottsville and Philadelphia, Penn., but impaired health has disqualified him for any active occupation.

JOHN COURTLAND DUBOIS,

Only child of Stephen A. DuBois, was born at Rhinebeck, Dutchess Co., N. Y., Aug. 10, 1831. He prepared for College at the Academy in that town, and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849. He studied medicine at the University Medical College, New York City, and received there the degree of M.D. in 1855, after which he was for a time Physician in a Hospital. From the spring of 1858 to the fall of 1860, and again in 1869, he was traveling in Europe. During the war he was a Surgeon in the service of U. S. A., and was successively attached to the David's Island Hospital, near New York, and to the Grant General Hospital at Willet's Point. At the close of the war he went to Hudson, N. Y., to be with his father, and his home is still there. He does not practice medicine, but is miscellaneously busy, as School Superintendent, Secretary of Literary Society, etc.

He married Miss Eva P. Kimball of Hudson, May 25, 1869, and has three children: Julian, born March 21, 1870; Rachel, born Aug. 6, 1871; Florence S., born Dec. 18, 1874.

LUCIUS CAMPBELL DUNCAN

Was born in Augusta, Bracken Co., Ky., in 1830, and entered College resident in New Orleans, La. He studied law in that city with his uncles L. C. Duncan, (Yale, 1821,) and G. B. Duncan, also at the University of Louisiana, from which he received the degree of LL. B. in 1854. The same year he was admitted to the bar, and afterwards was for a time editor of the New Orleans Delta. He visited New Haven in December, 1862, having just returned from a six months' trip to Europe, and after New Orleans was occupied by the Union forces he returned thither. Since the war he has lived in London, England, practicing law with fair success. No reply has been received from him, and he has probably failed to receive class letters and circulars sent to him.

He was married in May, 1854, and in 1862 had three children.

HENRY EDWIN DWIGHT,

Son of Rev. W. T. Dwight, D.D., (Yale, 1813,) and grandson of President Timothy Dwight, was born in Portland, Maine, Aug. 2, 1832, and fitted for College at the High School in that city. During the two years following graduation he taught in the Brooklyn (N. Y.) High School, and the next three years he spent in the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., where he graduated in 1857. Having preached at Dracut, Cambridge, Nantucket and other places in Mass., he was ordained and installed pastor of the First Church in Randolph, Mass., Dec. 29, 1859, and remained there until April 1, 1862. He then resigned and sailed to Europe, where he studied at the Universities of Halle, Berlin, and Paris, and traveled extensively. Returning to America in 1863, he commenced the study of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, and graduated M.D. in February, 1867. Soon after he was appointed Resident Physician at the Philadelphia Hospital, of which he is still one of the Visiting Physicians. He is now practicing his profession in that city, his residence being 336 South Fifteenth St. He takes an active interest in religious, educational and literary affairs, and in the highest welfare of those around him.

He married, Dec. 21, 1865, Miss Laura E. Lèman, a Swiss lady, and has two daughters: Elizabeth Loockerman Bradford, born June 18, 1867; Mary Adèle, born July 19, 1869.

* JAMES HARRISON DWIGHT,

Son of Rev. H. G. O. Dwight, D.D., (Hamilton, 1825,) missionary of the A. B. C. F. M., at Constantinople, was born at Valetta, on the Island of Malta in the Mediterranean, Oct. 9, 1830. He prepared for College at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and entered resident in Constantinople. He studied theology in the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, graduated there in the spring of 1855 and was licensed to preach by the Fourth Presbytery of New York. He then studied medicine at the College of Physicians in New York, from which he received the degree of M.D. in 1863. In 1857-58 he was stated supply of the Presbyterian Church in Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y. He then spent several months in New York City, laboring, in connection with his brother, (of Yale, 1854,) to secure the establishment of a College at Constantinople. That institution is now in successful operation, and known as "Robert College," from the name of a gentleman in New York who contributed largely toward establishing it. Dr. Hamlin, long missionary at Constantinople, and intimately connected with that College from the outset, gives special credit to the sons of Dr. Dwight for its existence, but for some cause neither of them was ever connected with it. In 1859, J. H. Dwight removed to the newly settled town of Englewood, N. J., near New York, in the founding of which he had taken a prominent part. Through his exertions largely a flourishing Presbyterian Church was built up there, of which he became the first pastor. A letter from his brother gives the following account of his later years. "He went to the war as chaplain of the 66th Regt. N. Y. Vols., under leave of absence from his church in 1861, and was connected with the Army of the Potomac 18 months, doing service as aid on the battle fields especially of Fredericksburg, Malvern Hill, Manassas Gap and Antietam, for which he was twice mentioned in the General's reports for gallantry. Recalled by his church, he returned to Englewood in 1863. In 1867 he resigned his pastoral charge, and owing to ill-health never undertook another. He was for two or more years Associate Editor of the 'Christian Union,' and afterward edited the Scientific Columns of the N. Y. 'Independent,' and the 'Christian at Work' for a considerable time, preaching as occasion demanded. He was especially interested and successful in advocating the essential harmony between science and religious truth. His last official work was as Secretary and General Agent of the Palestine Exploration Society, for which he worked ardently, though little credit is given to him in the public statements of that Society. This work wore him out. He followed the Expedition to the mouth of New York harbor, bade its leader adieu, went home exhausted with the thankless task, and laid himself down to die. He passed away Dec. 2, 1872."

He married, Sept. 6, 1855, Susan Eaton, daughter of Rev. Benjamin Schneider, D.D., Missionary of the A. B. C. F. M., at Aintab, Syria, who died Feb. 13, 1860. He married, a second time, Oct. 18, 1865, Josephine Christina, daughter of S. V. S. Wilder of New York. His son, Charles Abbott Schneider, was born Feb. 7, 1860, and is now a student at Yale College in the class of 1881.

JOHN ELDERKIN,

Son of George Elderkin, was born in Lebanon, Conn., June 22, 1825. He prepared for College at Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn., and at the Hartford Grammar School, and entered the class of '52 from the previous class at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849, resident in Colchester. In 1852-55 he studied theology at Yale Seminary, teaching a part of the time, then preached a few months at Sherman, Conn., but his throat failing, he taught at Bloomfield, N. J., in 1856-58, preaching frequently in that vicinity. In the winter of 1859-60 he attended lectures at Dr. Trall's Hydropathic College, New York City, and the three following winters at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, where he was awarded the Harson prize of $75. A part of this time he gave instruction as a private tutor. Early in 1862 he went to the seat of war on the James River and the Peninsula, where he assisted the Surgeons in their duties until Gen. McClellan's "change of base," when he returned to New York, and in October, 1863, received there the degree of M.D. from the College above named. He was soon after appointed Assistant Surgeon of the 10th Regiment U. S. Colored troops, and was with the army in Virginia most of the year 1864, a part of the time having charge of a ward in the 18th Army Corps Base Hospital, Point of Rocks, Va. Having been discharged on account of sickness, he returned to Colchester, preached there for a time in the Congregational church while the pastor was at the seat of war, then went to Orange, N. J., and taught there in a public school, May, 1865-July, 1868. Declining to be Principal of the school, he taught in 1868-69 at the Berkshire Institute, New Marlboro, Mass., then spent about a year in Colchester and Salem, Conn.; was acting pastor at Salem, October, 1870-May, 1873, and at Westfield, in Middletown, Conn., June, 1873-June, 1876; since then at West Suffield, Conn., where he still resides.

He married, at Lebanon, Conn., March 27, 1866, Miss Marianna Browning, and has two children: Mary Esther Powers, born April 29, 1869; and a son born January 6, 1878.

DANIEL COIT GILMAN,

Son of William C. Gilman, was born in Norwich, Conn., July 6, 1831. He fitted for College in New York City. The year after graduation he studied in New Haven under the direction of Prof. Porter. In December, 1853, he went to Europe with Hon. T. H. Seymour, U. S. Minister to Russia, and spent several months in St. Petersburg, Berlin, Paris, and London. Much of his time on this visit was devoted to the study of public education and other social questions. Returning home in 1855, he was appointed the next year Librarian of Yale College, and remained in that office till 1865. In 1857 he made a second visit to Europe. From 1856 to 1860 he was Superintendent of Schools for the City of New Haven, and in 1865 was appointed Secretary of the State Board of Education, and continued so to the close of the following year. In 1863 he was appointed Professor of Physical and Political Geography in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale College, of which he became the Secretary. In 1872 he accepted the Presidency of the University of California, when it was the second time offered him, and removed to Berkeley, Cal., but resigned in the spring of 1875 to become President of the newly established Johns Hopkins University, at Baltimore, Md. He is now engaged in the service of that institution. In furtherance of this work, he visited Europe a third time in 1875 and examined carefully the organization and methods of several Universities. He went again in 1877. His Inaugural Address and the two Annual Reports of the Johns Hopkins University, (1876 and 1877,) explain the plan on which it is organized. In 1875, he was appointed by the President a member of the Board of Visitors to the U. S. Military Academy, —was Secretary of the Board, and delivered the address to the graduating class. In 1876, he was a member of the Board of Visitors to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, and delivered the annual address to the graduates. He was one of the Judges in the U. S. Centennial Exhibition of 1876, in the department of Education and Science. He has been for several years a vice-president of the American Social Science Association, and has been chosen a member of the American Academy in Boston, the American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia, the N. Y. Academy of Sciences, the Cobden Club of London, and many other literary and scientific associations.

His writings for publication have been numerous. In 1859 he delivered a Historical Address at Norwich, commemorative of the 200th anniversary of the settlement of that town. In 1867 he gave an address at the expiration of a century and a half from the establishment of Yale College in New Haven. A large number of reports, lectures and addresses from his pen have been printed, and he has been a contributor to the "North American Review," the "New Englander," the "Nation," and various other periodicals. He rendered considerable aid in the last revision of Webster's Dictionary, and prepared several articles for Appleton's and Johnson's Cyclopedias. In 1876 he received the degree of LL.D. from Harvard University, and also from St. Johns College, Maryland.

He married, Dec. 4, 1861, Miss Mary Ketcham (daughter of Tredwell Ketcham of New York), who died Oct. 25, 1869. On the 13th of June, 1877, he married at Newport, R. I., Miss Elisabeth Dwight Woolsey, daughter of the late John M. Woolsey of New Haven, and niece of Ex-President Woolsey. He has two daughters, Alice, born March 14, 1863 and Elizabeth, born Dec. 25, 1867.

Printed Addresses, etc.:—Historical Address, Norwich, 1859; Reports on New Haven Schools, 1856–60; Reports on Connecticut Education, 1865–66; Historical Address, New Haven, 1867; Annual Addresses, Amer. Geogr. Soc. New York (two); Inaugural Address, University of California, 1872; Reports on Univ. of California, 1872–75; Inaugural Address, Baltimore, 1876; Reports of Johns Hopkins University, 1876–1877; Address at Deaf-Mute College, Washington, 1875; Address at West Point, 1875; Address at Annapolis, 1876; Address to Society of Friends, 1877; Address to Medical Graduates, 1878. Numerous articles in Periodicals.

JONATHAN ELBRIDGE GOODHUE,

Son of Joseph Goodhue, of Deerfield, N. H., was born in that town in 1824. He prepared for College at the Genesee and Wyoming Seminary, in Alexander, Genesee Co., N. Y., and joined the class at the beginning of the third term of Freshman year. Ill health in Senior year, prevented his graduating with the class, but he received the degree of A. M. in 1855, with the privilege of being enrolled with us in the Triennial. He was engaged in teaching for several years, and at length entered upon the study of Theology at the Berkeley Divinity School in Middletown, Conn. Was ordained at that place by Bishop Williams to the diaconate in the Protestant Episcopal Church, May 30, 1860, and the next Sunday entered upon his duties as Rector of St. Paul's Church, Brookfield, Conn., where he was ordained to the Priesthood, May 31, 1861. In the spring of 1860 he removed to Sterling, White-side Co., Illinois, and became Rector of Grace Church. Two years after he took charge of Trinity Church, Davenport, Iowa, where he remained five years; then returned to Sterling, in 1877, and resumed his former charge in that place.

He married, Oct. 29, 1860, Miss Esther A. Hawley of Newtown, Conn., and has three children: Mary Helen, born May 17, 1862; Willis Elbridge, born Jan. 23, 1867; Marion Louise, born Sept. 9, 1876.

DAVID BRIGHT GREEN,

Son of John Green, was born in Reading, Berks Co., Penn., Dec. 22, 1831. He fitted for college in that city, and entered the third term of Freshman year, May, 1849. After graduation he studied law in Reading two and a half years with his brother, (Yale, 1849,) was admitted to the bar in January, 1855, and removed in April following to Pottsville, Schuylkill Co., Penn., where he has since resided. He was engaged in the practice of law till 1867, when he was first appointed, and afterwards elected, Judge of the Criminal Court of Schuylkill, Lebanon and Dauphin Counties. That court was abolished by the new State Constitution adopted in 1873, and he was then transferred to the Common Pleas of Schuylkill County and made a Law Judge of all the courts in the county, which position he now holds. In August, 1862, he entered the Union service as Adjutant of the 129th Regiment Penn. Volunteers, and served about a year, in the Army of the Potomac, Fifth Corps, participating in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, etc. When the State of Pennsylvania was invaded, in 1863, he assisted in raising the 27th Regiment Penn. Vols., of which he became Lieut.-Colonel. That regiment rendered efficient service.

He married, at Lynchburgh, Va., Dec. 8, 1870, Miss Kate P. Brooks, formerly of Pottsville, and has two daughters: Ida, born July 25, 1872; and Katie, born July 30, 1873.

CHARLES AUGUSTUS GRISWOLD,

Son of Selah Griswold, was born in Saybrook, Conn., Nov. 24, 1830. He prepared for college at home and in Cheshire, Conn., and joined the class at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849. He studied medicine at New Haven, Utica, N. Y. and New York City, receiving the degree of M.D. from the N. Y. College of Physicians and Surgeons, March 11, 1856. In September following he removed to Fulton, Whiteside Co., Illinois, where he has since resided practicing his profession, except when absent three years in the army. He has also been editor of the local paper, and Lecturer on Physiology, Anatomy and Hygiene in the Western Union College at Fulton. In 1862 he became Assist.-Surgeon of the 93d Regiment Ill. Vols., which participated in the various movements for the capture of Vicksburgh, and entered that city, July 4, 1863. He was also with the army of Gen. Sherman in the famous "march to the sea," and then from Savannah to Raleigh, N. C. In December, 1876, he was on board the railroad train which crashed through the bridge at Ashtabula, Ohio, and was severely injured.

He married, at Cleveland, Ohio, July 5, 1866, Miss Alice E. Smith, who died Dec. 10, 1874. He has had four children, of whom two are living: Marietta Alice, born June 23, 1868; Joie Adelaide, born March 8, 1870, died Sept. 30, 1870; Henrietta Beaumont, born May 8, 1871; Charles Richard, born Dec. 1, 1874, died July 19, 1875.

* FRANKLIN GRUBE

Was born in East Coventry, Chester Co., Pa., Feb. 10, 1831. He fitted for college in the public schools at home, and in the Preparatory Department of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., and entered the class at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849, resident at Pottstown, Montgomery Co., Pa. He studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, where he graduated M.D. in April, 1854, then studied a year in Paris, and afterwards traveled in Europe, Egypt and Palestine. Returning home in July, 1855, he soon removed to Clinton, near Jackson, Miss., where he practiced his profession for a year; then returned to Pennsylvania, and early in 1857 fixed his residence at Geary City, and afterwards at Leavenworth, Kansas, where he practiced medicine and took an active part in the political affairs of that Territory, holding various local offices, and in 1861 being elected to the State legislature. In 1862 he once more returned to his native State and was appointed Surgeon of Volunteers, and was for a time executive officer of the hospital at Camp Denison, Ohio. In 1864 he removed to Oregon, and practiced as a physician at Oregon City, Portland and Jacksonville, in that State, till his death, in Jacksonville, June 11, 1869. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church in that place, and was regarded as an upright and exemplary Christian.

He married Miss Adaline L. Culver, at Rochester, N. Y., June 16, 1864, and had three children: Lura, born June 19, 1865, died Aug. 3, 1866; Warren, born Aug. 15, 1866; Lovell M., born Dec. 23, 1868. Mrs. Grube has returned to her former home in Rochester. Her address is, No. 40, Lyell St., Rochester, N. Y.

CYRUS LYMAN HALL,

Son of Daniel and Philena Lyman Hall, was born in Perry, Wyoming Co., N. Y., Sept. 17, 1824. He prepared for college without an instructor, while teaching school, and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849, resident at Oakfield, Genesee Co., N. Y. He taught, after graduation, at Woodbury, Conn., and Fordham, N. Y., also studying law, was admitted to the bar at Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1854, practiced for two years at Batavia, Genesee Co., N. Y., then removed in 1856 to Hudson, St. Croix Co., Wisconsin, where he still resides. In 1858-9 he was District Attorney for that county, and from 1862 onward was County Judge. Since 1870 he has devoted himself to the practice of his profession, giving special attention to real estate matters.

He married, May 1, 1854, Miss Josephine Bacon, daughter of Theodore W. Walker, of Woodbury, Conn., and has had three children, two of them now living: Mary Frances, born July 31, 1856; Howard Percy, born Nov. 2, 1858, died Sept. 19, 1859; Charles Marshall, born March 3, 1862. His daughter graduated in the class of 1878 at the State University of Wisconsin, and the son is at present a clerk in his father's office.

* REGINALD HEBER HALL,

Son of Robert C. and Sarah W. Hall, was born at Muncy Farms, Lycoming Co., Pa., June 1, 1832, and entered the class at the beginning of Junior year, September, 1850, resident in Philadelphia, having previously been a member of Burlington College, New Jersey. He studied law at Williamsport and Carlisle, Pa., was admitted to the bar at the latter place Nov. 14, 1854, and the following month removed to Indianapolis, Indiana, where he resided and practiced his profession for upwards of seventeen years. In the early part of February, 1872, he left home on a trip to New Orleans, mainly for the benefit of his health, which threatened to give way under his close application to professional work. He was much exposed to cold and wet on board the boat, and upon his arrival at Memphis, Tenn., he was stricken with something like paralysis, and lingered five days between life and death, conscious of his situation, and tenderly nursed by his wife, who had joined him. He died Feb. 16, 1872, and his body was taken to Indianapolis for interment. The members of the bar of that city expressed in the warmest terms their high estimation of him as a lawyer and a gentleman. (See the Class Record prepared in 1872.)

He married, July 29, 1859, Sarah L., daughter of Dr. George W. Mears of Indianapolis, but had no children.

HENRY CLAY HALLOWELL,

Son of Benjamin Hallowell, a well known Mathematician and Instructor, was born in Alexandria, Va., June 16, 1829. He prepared for College in that city at the Mathematical and Scientific School of which his father was Principal, and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849. For three years after graduation he was associated with his father and his classmate Miller in conducting the school just mentioned. In 1855 ill health compelled him to go abroad, where he visited several countries of Europe, though remaining longest in Italy. He returned home in 1856, and the next year removed to "Rockland Farm," Sandy Spring, Montgomery Co., Md., eighteen miles north of Washington, D. C., where he has since resided. He takes great interest in agriculture, is connected with various incorporated companies, has delivered several courses of lectures on scientific subjects, Agricultural and Literary addresses, etc., and has been a Republican candidate for the Maryland State Senate, but was not elected. In September, 1876, he delivered the "Centennial Ode" at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the organization of Montgomery County.

He married, July 16, 1857, Sarah, daughter of Robert H. Miller, of Alexandria, Va., and sister of our classmate Miller. He has had eight children, all but one of whom are still living: Cornelia, born July 15, 1858; Edith, born Oct. 6, 1859; Francis Miller, born Oct. 4, 1861; Benjamin, born April 12, 1863, died Dec. 25, 1863; Robert M., born March 23, 1865; Mary S., born Aug. 28, 1867; Eliza M., born Oct. 31, 1869; John Elgar, born July 25, 1873.

FRANCIS WILLARD HARDY,

Son of Jeremiah P. Hardy, was born in Hampden, Penobscot Co., Maine, in 1830. He prepared for College in the High School in Bangor, Maine, and entered resident in that city. He was in Europe for a year, in 1852-53, then taught in Maine and Massachusetts a year and a half, and in April, 1855, took up Photography, which he still practices in Bangor, Me.

He has been twice married; first, Sept. 23, 1858, to Miss M. A. Hills, daughter of James Hills, of Monson, Me., who died Dec. 19, 1865; second, May 8, 1867, to Miss Helen M. Stilson, at Galesburg, Ill., who died Feb. 20, 1876. Of his four children, three are living: Frank A., born Feb. 4, 1860, died June 22, 1860; Mary Alice, born May 23, 1861; Hattie Hills, born June 16, 1863; Helen F., born April 17, 1868.

CHARLES DOWNES HELMER,

Son of Steuben Helmer, was born in Canajoharie, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1827. He prepared for College in the Academy at Little Falls, N. Y., and entered Yale from Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., at the beginning of Junior year, September, 1850, resident in Buel, N. Y. He taught two years at the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, in New York City, and in September, 1854, entered the Union Theological Seminary, New York, graduating there in May, 1857. Having declined the appointment of tutor at Yale, he went to Europe, studied several months at Heidelberg and Berlin, and traveled extensively on the continent and in England. Returning to America, he preached several months in Hartford, Conn., (Dr. Bushnell's church,) and was invited to take the pastorate of that church, but declined, and accepted a call to become pastor of Plymouth Church (Congregational) in Milwaukee, Wis., where he was ordained and installed in September, 1859. In December, 1866, he became pastor of the Union Park Church in Chicago, and in 1876 he removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he is pastor of the Tompkins Avenue Church. He has been a contributor to various periodicals, and editor of two religious papers, and at Commencement in 1862 he delivered before the Phi. B. K. Society of Yale a poem which was soon afterward printed. He received the degree of D.D.

from Beloit College in 1874, but declined it, as inconsistent with the Great Teacher's precepts.

He married, Dec. 25, 1861, Miss Susan R. Bonnell, daughter of James Bonnell of Milwaukee. Children: Charles Clarence, born Aug. 31, 1863, died the same day; Faith, born April 29, 1867; Ernest Bonnell, born Oct. 17, 1869; Bruce Hathorn, born May 2, 1873, died May 21, 1873; Grace, born April 17, 1875, died March 10, 1877.

JOHN BAKER HENDRICKSON,

Son of George R. Hendrickson, was born in Savannah, Georgia, Oct. 1, 1829. He spent the winter of 1852-53 in Savannah, then fixed his residence permanently in New York City, where he is still engaged in business, at No. 58 Cedar St. Residence, 55 W. 39th St.

He married, April 5, 1864, Miss Emma O. Clark of New York. No reply has been received from him.

EDWARD HOUGHTON,

Son of Cyrus Houghton, was born in Lancaster, Mass., in 1829. He prepared for College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered resident at Holliston in that State. He studied law in New Haven a year after graduation, then removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was admitted to the bar and commenced practice, but afterwards returned to Massachusetts and engaged in teaching. He now lives in Lancaster, Mass., is married, and has two daughters. He has not replied to circulars and letters that have been sent to him.

* LEWIS HOWE,

Son of Jonas and Anna M. Howe, was born in Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 6, 1827, and fitted for College at the Academy in that town. The fall and winter after graduation he taught school in Cromwell, Conn., and in the spring of 1853 he established at Greenwich a boarding school for boys, which he continued till his death, July 3, 1857.

He married, at Greenwich, Nov. 3, 1852, Miss Mary L. Brush, and had three children: Anna Mead, born Sept. 15, 1853; Joseph Brush, born Feb. 7, 1855, died Sept. 5, 1863; Mary Lewis, born Jan. 25, 1857. Mrs. Howe afterward married Benjamin F. Bassett, M.D. (Yale, 1847,) of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Wilton, Conn., who died in 1875. Mrs. Bassett now lives at 131 Dwight St., New Haven, Conn.

DAVID GREEN HUBBARD,

Son of Hon. W. J. Hubbard (Yale, 1820), was born in Boston, Mass., in July, 1831, and fitted for college in the Boston Latin School. He studied law two years with his father and at Cambridge Law School, but the condition of his health prevented his entering that profession, and he removed to Owego, Tioga Co., N. Y., where he resided till about the time of his father's death, in 1864, when he returned to the vicinity of Boston. He now resides at East Bridgewater, Mass., where he has a small farm and leads a very quiet secluded life. He has never married, but a sister lives with him. Occasionally he has had young men in the family as students, for whom his superior classical scholarship renders him an admirable instructor.

* WILLIAM FLINTOFF HUMPHREY,

Son of William Humphrey, was born in Maccan, Cumberland Co., Nova Scotia, Oct. 24, 1826, and joined the class at the beginning of Sophomore year. After attending two courses of lectures at the Jefferson Medical College, in Philadelphia, he received the degree of M.D. at that institution in April, 1854. He spent the intervening summer in New Haven. In the autumn of 1854 he sailed from Nova Scotia for Europe, was House Physician for a year in the Royal Infirmary and student in the University at Edinburgh, then pursued his medical studies in Paris. He afterward established himself at St. John, New Brunswick, and there practiced his profession successfully till ill health compelled him to seek a milder climate. He went to Europe in November, 1864, and died of pulmonary disease at Valetta, on the island of Malta, in the Mediterranean, Feb. 7, 1865. Our classmate Cooper, who saw him frequently at Edinburgh, speaks warmly of "his high moral tone and strict integrity."

He married, Dec. 11, 1861, at St. John, New Brunswick, Hattie Howard, only daughter of Robert Sears, formerly a well known publisher in New York City. He had no children.

* GEORGE EDWARD HURD,

Son of Ezekiel Hurd, was born in Dover, N. H., Aug. 14, 1830. He was for two or three years a member of the class of 1851, but was compelled by ill health to fall back into the next class, which he joined about the middle of Junior year, in the early part of 1851. Immediately after graduation he commenced the study of Theology, and in October, 1853, became a member of the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in New York City. He was ordained Deacon by Bishop Chase of New Hampshire, but his health, never vigorous, gradually failed, and he died at Dover, N. H., Oct. 16, 1858.

CHARLES LINNÆUS IVES,

Son of Dr. N. B. Ives (Yale, 1825), was born in New Haven, June 22, 1831, and fitted for College at the Hopkins Grammar School. He attended two courses of lectures at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, where he received the degree of M.D. in 1854, attended a third course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and was Resident Physician at Bellevue Hospital, New York, till April, 1856, when he entered upon the practice of his profession in New Haven. From 1864-68 he was engaged in teaching medicine in connection with Yale Medical College, and from 1868 to 1873 was Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in that institution. In 1870 he made an extensive tour in Europe, visiting our classmate Seropyan, thence passing into Russia by the Black Sea, the Don and the Volga; and also through Northern Europe. In 1873, hoping to better his health, he resigned at Yale to accept the chair of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the University of New York. To prepare for this, he made a second trip to Europe, but failing health compelled him to resign this professorship also, and entirely to relinquish his profession. Since that date he traveled abroad and in California and the Northwest. In the winter of 1875-76 he had charge of a Congregational Church of 120 members in Minnesota. In 1873 he published in this country and in London, Eng., a pamphlet on the Bible Doctrine of the Soul, which, in 1877, he republished in Philadelphia as a 12 mo. of 334 pages.

He married, June 20, 1860, Miss Bessie W. Salter of Waverly, Ill., sister of our classmate Salter. He has had no children.

Having taught several months in New Orleans, and a year in Kentucky, he sailed for the Sandwich Islands in October, 1854, and has resided there since that time. In August, 1875, he revisited his native land and spent a year visiting friends and renewing old associations, during which time he met several of his classmates. Barrett has visited him three times at his island home. He has been engaged in the practice of law and has held several offices under the Hawaiian government, as Judge of the Hilo district, twice a member and once Speaker of the House of Representatives, Chief Clerk of the Supreme Court, and since Feb. 1, 1877, Associate Justice of that Court. He also has an orange plantation, and is otherwise interested in promoting agriculture, having introduced a new method of irrigation.

He married at Honolulu, May 25, 1866, Miss Ellen Harvey, of Kenduskeag, Maine. He has no children. His address is Honolulu, Sandwich Islands.

ALEXANDER COGLE McKISSACK,

Son of William McKissack, was born in Rexboro, Person Co., N. C., April 20, 1831. He finished his preparation for college at Monmouth and Gardiner, Maine, and entered resident at Spring Hill, Maury Co., Tenn. He studied law at home a year after graduation, and was then for a short time engaged in cotton and wool manufacturing at Pulaski, Tenn. In 1855 he removed to a plantation which he had recently purchased, a few miles from Holly Springs, Marshall Co., Miss., and was for several years a cotton planter. In 1861-62 he was for a year color-bearer of the first Mississippi regiment in the Confederate service, and then for three years captain in the 4th Mississippi Cavalry, the last Confederate regiment disbanded east of the Mississippi river. He passed through these four years without being captured or seriously wounded, and at the close of the war returned to his old home in Tennessee to repair his broken fortunes. He now lives near Pulaski, Giles Co., Tenn., and is engaged in the manufacture of cotton and flour. A very cordial letter from him was read at the Quarter-Centennial meeting.

He married, Aug. 10, 1854, at Pulaski, Tenn., Miss Eliza Jones Aykroyd. His only child, a daughter, born in 1855, died in infancy.

VINCENT MARMADUKE,

He prepared for college at the Masonic College, New Palmyra, Mo., and joined the class the second term of Junior year, Jan. 15, 1851. He studied law for a year after graduation, but did not enter upon the profession, having become engaged in mercantile pursuits, farming, mining, and land speculations. During the civil war he held the rank of Colonel in the Confederate Army, but was not in active service in the field. He was detained by the U. S. Government for several months at Washington and elsewhere, and afterward resided at St. Louis, being for a time editor of a newspaper in that city. He has since returned to his native place, which is now his home.

He married, July 5, 1853, Miss Eakin of Nashville, Tenn., who died in Sept., 1861, leaving two children: Lavinia, born June, 1854; Sallie, born Dec. 1856. He married, a second time, Mrs. Ames of St. Louis.

WILLIAM CARRINGTON MAYO,

Son of Edward C. Mayo, (Yale, 1811,) was born in Richmond, Va., Jan. 8, 1834, and entered the class at the beginning of Junior year, Sept. 1850, from Burlington College, N. J. He was for a short time engaged in engineering near Altoona, Penn., and in Portage Co., Ohio, then went to Europe and remained abroad several years, residing chiefly in Paris. Returning home, he served in the Confederate army during the war, and was afterwards, until recently, engaged in business in Richmond.

He married in 1870 a daughter of ex-Gov. Henry A. Wise of Virginia, and has four children.

FRANCIS MILLER,

Son of Robert H. and Anna Miller, was born in Alexandria, Va., July 31, 1829. He prepared for college at the "Alexandria Boarding School," and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, Sept. 1849. He taught with his father-in-law, Benjamin Hallowell, from 1852 to 1858, and was afterward principal of a private school in Sandy Spring, Md., till 1867. He then studied law, was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia in May, 1868, and has since practiced his profession in Washington, D. C., his residence continuing at Sandy Spring, Md. In November, 1876, he was appointed Assistant U. S. District Attorney for the District of Columbia, which office he held for one year, when he was selected by the Attorney for the District of Columbia as his Assistant, in which position he still continues.

He married, Sept. 23, 1852, Caroline, daughter of Benjamin Hallowell, of Alexandria, Va., and sister of our classmate Hallowell, who also married Miller's sister. Miller has had six children, of whom four are living: James H., (the first born of the class,) born July 8, 1853, died Sept. 26, 1854; Henry Hallowell, born May 18, 1856; Warwick Guion, born June 25, 1858, died Feb. 24, 1860; George Brooke, born January 12, 1861; Margaret Elgar, born May 1, 1862; Guion, born April 29, 1864.

His son, George B. Miller, has entered Yale College in the class of 1882.

*DAVID OGDEN MOREHOUSE,

The first year after graduation he taught at Westville, in New Haven. In the autumn of 1853 he commenced the study of medicine in Philadelphia. The next spring he engaged in teaching at York, Pa., where he was drowned while bathing, May 25, 1854.

BARRON CLINTON MOULTON,

Son of Barron Moulton, was born in Lyman, Grafton Co., N. H., Feb. 3, 1829. He prepared for college at the academies in St. Johnsbury and Newbury, Vt., and entered resident at Lower Waterford, Vt. In February, 1853, he sailed for San Francisco, Cal., and resided in that city and its vicinity for over two years. He afterward studied law and was admitted to the bar, and has since practiced his profession, first in Concord, N. H., and then in Boston, Mass., where he now resides. His office is at 23 Court street. In the summer of 1876, ill health, resulting from too close application to business, compelled him to take rest for several months.

He married at Boston, Aug. 7, 1872, Miss Kate W. Loring, but has no children.

*GEORGE STARR MYGATT,

Son of George Mygatt, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 16, 1831. He was engaged with his father in business as a banker at Cleveland till October, 1856, when he married and spent several months in Florida. In 1858 he entered the law office of F. T. Backus at Cleveland, and was admitted to the bar in 1860. After practicing a few months he was appointed Aid to Gov. Denison of Ohio, in April, 1861, and acted as Assistant Quartermaster General of the State until August following, when he became Major of the 41st Regiment Ohio Volunteers. In February, 1862, he was promoted to be Lieut. Colonel of the same regiment, of which he was in command two months later at the battle of Pittsburgh Landing. Ill health compelled him to resign, and after a few months rest he accepted the position of Cashier in the Internal Revenue office at Cleveland, which he held till July, 1865. He died at Cleveland, Jan. 3, 1866.

He was twice married: first, Oct. 16, 1856, to Miss Lucy Ellen Kelley, who died Dec. 30, 1857; second, Nov. 5, 1861, to Mrs. Annie C. Clark. He had two children, who are now living with their mother in Cleveland: Mary Hallie, born Aug. 30, 1863; George Starr, born Nov. 25, 1864.

*ANGELO WOOD NORTH

He was engaged in teaching for three years; in St. Louis, Mo., New York City, and Elizabeth, N. J. In the autumn of 1855 he removed to New Market, Platte Co., Mo., and engaged in mercantile business. A year later he returned to New York city, and continued in business there till the close of his life. For several years he was Secretary in the counting room of H. B. Claffin & Co., New York, his residence being in Jersey City, N. J. At the class meeting in 1877 he was reported as seriously ill, and two days later—June 29—he died in Jersey City, after an illness of several months.

He married, Nov. 7, 1854, Miss Julia A. Truesdell of New York City, and left four children: Frank, born July 6, 1856; Matthias, born Feb. 4, 1859; Harry, born Feb. 10, 1861; Hattie Elizabeth, born Nov. 6, 1867. His family reside at 81 Grand st., Jersey City, N. J.

EDWARD REILLY,

Son of John Reilly, was born in Lancaster, Pa., March 14, 1834—the youngest member of the class. He prepared for college in the school of Rev. Henry Jones of Bridgeport (Yale, 1820,) and entered, resident in that city, at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849. He taught in a family in Louisiana for six months after graduation, and was then employed for several months in New Jersey, in the construction of the Philadelphia and Atlantic City R. R. In 1853-54 he studied law for a year with Thaddeus Stevens in Lancaster, Pa. In November, 1854, he removed to Kansas, and remained there fourteen months, engaged chiefly in the survey of public lands. Being compelled by sickness to return to Lancaster, he resumed his studies with Mr. Stevens, and was admitted to the bar in that city Aug. 27, 1856. For several years he practiced law there in the office of his former instructor. Afterward he was employed in railroad building in Costa Rica, and as Agent of the Southern Pacific R. R. He served in the Penn. Militia during the raid upon that State in 1863. In his letter of June 15, 1877, he wrote: "My present business is mining. I have a few copper mines, and am now engaged in erecting a smelter to run the ores. My location is on Salmon River, in the N. E. corner of Nevada, 62 miles from Toana, a station on the Central Pacific R. R." His P. O. address is Elko, Nevada.

He married, at Lancaster, Pa., April 26, 1860, Miss Anna R. Rogers, and has had three children; Edith, born May 25, 1861; Mary Hand, born April 9, 1865, died Nov. 9, 1877; Edward, born Nov. 11, 1870, died Nov. 21, 1877.

Though Reilly's time is mostly spent in Nevada, his home is New Haven, where his family reside.

WILLIAM AUGUSTUS REYNOLDS, JR.,

Was born in New Haven, Conn., Aug. 23, 1833, and fitted for college at the Hopkins Grammar School in that city. He taught for a time in the "Collegiate and Commercial Institute," New Haven, and in 1854-55 in the Friends School at Haverford, Pa., near Philadelphia. Returning to New Haven in 1855, he pursued philological studies there two years, and in August, 1857, removed to Philadelphia, where he conducted a private school till October, 1861. Since that time he has resided in Europe, engaged in teaching. He was for a few months at Eltham, an ancient village of Kent, not far from London, but after his visit to America, in 1862-63, he established himself in or near Paris. His address is "No. 12 Rue Bausset, Vaugirard, Paris, France."

He married, in New York, Sept. 16, 1854, Mlle. Rosalie C. de Belem, a native of Altona in Schleswig-Holstein, and daughter of Col. Alexandre F. de Belem, of Mons, Belgium.

SAMUEL CURTIS ROBINSON,

Son of Samuel Robinson (Yale, 1817), was born in Guilford, Conn., Sept. 20, 1830. He prepared for college in that town, under the instruction of his father, and entered at the beginning of the course, having previously been a member of the class of 1851. He studied medicine two years at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, and then attended a third course of lectures at the Yale Medical School, where he graduated M.D. in January, 1855. He was "a practitioner of the healing art at sea and on shore from 1855 to 1877." He was for a time Surgeon on various steamships of the Havre line. During the civil war he was Surgeon on the armed transport McClellan of the U. S. Army. From 1865 to June, 1877, he was Medical Examiner of an Insurance Company in New York City. At present (Aug., 1878) he is undecided whether to pursue the healing art, or to "skirmish in some other direction." His residence is 431 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

In October, 1867, he married Sarah, daughter of James H. Henry, M.D., of Brooklyn, and has had three children: James Henry, born May 24, 1870; Anna Curtis, born June 16, 1871; Louise Mattoon, born May 22, 1875, died Aug. 21, 1876.

*NATHANIEL WILLIAM TAYLOR ROOT,

Son of Rev. Judson A. Root (Yale, 1823), was born in New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24, 1829. He fitted for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered Yale in 1847, in the class of 1851, but soon withdrew and joined the next class, in August, 1848. He remained in the class only two or three terms and was then engaged for several years as teacher in a school for young ladies conducted by his father, and in Gen. Russell's Military School for boys, both in New Haven. In 1853 he visited Europe, and spent several months, chiefly in Florence. He afterward revisited Europe several times. In 1854-55 he taught in the High School at Quincy, Ill. In 1856 he entered the Berkeley Divinity School, at Middletown, Conn., and completed the course of study there in May, 1859. He was ordained Deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church, May 25, 1859, and Priest Dec. 25, 1860. He was Assistant Minister at Meriden, Conn., Brooklyn, N. Y., and New York City, till November, 1860, when he took charge of the church at Lonsdale, R. I., where he remained four years. In May, 1861, he became chaplain of the 9th Regiment R. I. Volunteers, and in September, 1863, Chaplain of a regiment of R. I. State Militia. He received the degree of A.M. from Yale College, in 1863, and with the privilege of being enrolled on the Triennial with the class, to which he was strongly attached. In November, 1864, he removed to Newtown, Queens Co., N. Y., and was Rector of a church in that place for more than three years, though within that time, in the summer of 1867, he was, for a few months, assistant minister of the American Episcopal Chapel in Paris, France. His removal to Portland, Maine, occurred in March, 1868. During the four or five years of his residence there he secured the erection of the handsome stone church and rectory of St. Paul's Parish, and was appointed by the Bishop of the Diocese Canon of St. Luke's Cathedral in that city. He was also an active member of the Portland School Committee, Instructor in Drawing in Bowdoin College, and in many ways an influential and useful citizen. He was, for many years, a frequent contributor to Harper's Weekly and Monthly, and various other periodicals, and the author of several published volumes. "School Amusements" appeared in 1857, and afterwards "Contraband Christmas," "Vanny Croft," "The Morgan Boys," and "The Story of a Stamp." The disease which terminated his life was contracted in a visit to Boston soon after the great fire of Nov., 1872, for the purpose of collecting facts and incidents to be woven into stories which he proposed to write. He died of small pox, Dec. 14, 1872.

He married Miss C. E. Nash, of New Haven, Conn., January 1, 1855. Children: William Winthrop, born Nov. 27, 1855; Florence Margaret, born Feb. 19, 1859; Lawrence Gray, born Jan. 7, 1870.

WILLIAM BALDWIN ROSS,

Son of Samuel T. Ross, was born in New York City, Nov. 13, 1831, and prepared for college at the Washington Institute in that city. He was admitted to Yale in the summer of 1847, with the class of 1851, but did not return to join that class. Subsequently he was engaged as a clerk in an Importing House in New York City until May, 1849, when he was admitted to the class of 1852 during the third term of Freshman year. He studied at the Albany, N. Y., Law School, Sept., 1852—March, 1853, and was then admitted to the bar. The next six months he studied with B. D. Silliman, Esq., in New York City, and subsequently at the Cambridge Law School, and received the degree of LL.B. from Harvard University in July, 1854. He then re-entered the office of B. D. Silliman, Esq., but after a few years opened a separate law office on Wall Street, New York, and has since practiced his profession in that city. His present office is in Drexel Building, corner of Wall and Broad Streets, New York. He served in the civil war as a member of the 7th Regiment N. Y. State National Guard, in 1862, at Baltimore.

WILLIAM LEONARD ROWLAND,

Son of William M. Rowland, was born in Bristol, R. I., May 31, 1831. The family having removed a few years later to Augusta, Richmond Co., Ga., he prepared for college at the Richmond Academy and in a private school, both in Augusta, and entered resident there. After graduation he returned to that city, and pursued the study of law. In 1855 he removed with his father's family to Rockford, Ill., where he has since resided, practicing his profession. In 1872 he was appointed librarian of the Rockford Public Library, which position he still holds.

GEORGE BLAGDEN SAFFORD,

Son of Daniel Safford, was born in Boston, Mass., Jan. 6, 1832, and prepared for college in the Boston Latin School. The first year after graduation he spent as a teacher in the Deaf and Dumb Institution in New York City. The next three years he studied theology in the Seminary at Andover, Mass., graduating there in August, 1856. Early in 1857 he went to Europe, where he traveled for nearly a year. On his return he was ordained as an evangelist at Northbridge, Mass., Sept. 2, 1858, where he remained nearly two years. In September, 1860, he removed to Burlington, Vt., to take charge of the College Street (Congregational) Church, of which he was installed pastor Dec. 20, 1860. He still remains there in his first pastorate. In 1878 he received the degree of D.D. from the University of Vermont.

He married at Andover, Mass., June 28, 1858, Miss Mary B. Gould, daughter of Abraham J. Gould, and has four children: Helen, born Dec. 9, 1859; Henry Thayer, born June 11, 1863; Mary Bigelow, born Sept. 4, 1865; Annie Williston, born July 6, 1869.

CHARLES COTTON SALTER,

Son of Cleveland J. Salter, was born in New Haven, Conn., Feb. 19, 1832. The family removed, a few years later, to Waverly, Morgan Co., Illinois, and he prepared for college there and at St. Louis, Mo., entering the class in the third term of Freshman year, June 12, 1849, resident in Waverly. The first two years after graduation he taught in the classical department of the High School in St. Louis, Mo. During one year, in 1854-55, he studied theology in the Seminary at Andover, Mass., the next two years he pursued theological studies in the Yale Seminary, and was also tutor in Yale College from January, 1856 to May, 1857. He was licensed to preach, at New Haven, in May, 1856, and was a resident student at Andover Seminary from Sept., 1857 to July, 1858. He was ordained and installed pastor of the Congregational Church at Kewanee, Henry Co., Illinois, April 11, 1859, and dismissed on account of ill health in April, 1861. In January, 1862, he became Chaplain of the 13th Regiment Conn. Volunteers, and accompanied the regiment to New Orleans, but resigned June 15, 1862, on account of loss of voice. In the same year he took charge of the Plymouth Church, at Minneapolis, Minn., of which he was pastor from Sept. 28, 1864 to April 14, 1869, though absent on account of impaired health, and traveling in Europe, the latter part of that time. In the autumn of 1869 he removed to Brookfield, Mo., and for about two years was acting pastor of the Congregational Church there. He then went to Duluth, Minn., and took charge of the Congregational Church in that place, being installed pastor March 12, 1872. This pastorate terminated in 1876, and he then took another journey to Europe, returning in the spring of 1877. Soon after his return he was invited to become pastor of the Congregational Church in Denver, Col., where he now resides.

He married Miss Maria Vaughan, daughter of W. Vaughan, of Providence, R. I., June 1, 1859, and has had six children of whom four are now living. Cleveland Vaughan, born December 20, 1860, died Sept. 3, 1863; Charles Cotton, born Nov. 25, 1863; William Homes, born Oct. 13, 1865; John Cleveland, born Jan. 24, 1868, died Dec. 30, 1869; Frank Ives, born May 6, 1871; Mary Josephine, born Jan. 19, 1873.

HENRY SEYMOUR SANFORD,

Son of Hon. David C. Sanford, Judge of the Supreme Court of Conn., was born in Norwalk, Conn., March 1, 1832. His home having been removed, a few years later, to New Milford, Conn., he prepared for college in that town, and entered resident there. He studied law with his father, also at Washington, D. C., with his uncle, Hon. O. S. Seymour, of Litchfield, at that time a Representative in Congress, and in the law schools of Yale and Harvard, and was admitted to the bar August 16, 1854. He then entered upon the practice of his profession, residing in New Milford until 1864, and since that time in Bridgeport, Conn. While living in New Milford, he usually had several young men pursuing legal studies under his direction. He also delivered occasional literary and political lectures and addresses. In July, 1861, he received a severe injury, resulting in suffusion on the spine, and occasioning a painful and long-continued illness, and an almost total paralysis. His health has been fully restored, but he is permanently unable to walk, and locomotion is accomplished by means of a wheeled chair and a servant. For several years he has been accustomed to try and argue cases in court, sitting. In the number of cases that he has tried, he has, for many years, not been surpassed by any lawyer in his county.

He married, June 13, 1865, Miss Sophia Claffin Daniels, daughter of Samuel Daniels, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and has had four children: Caro. Louise, born April 7, 1866, died April 9, 1867; Jennie Daniels, born May 9, 1868; David Curtis, born July 25, 1870; Henry Seymour, born Aug. 5, 1873.

*CHRISTOPHER DICRAN SEROPYAN

Was born in Constantinople, Turkey, Aug. 18, 1825. He belonged to the Armenian race, one of the most intelligent and enterprising of the so-called Christian "nations" in the Turkish Empire. Previous to entering Yale he had spent a few years at Manlius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., and had fitted for college there. After graduation he studied in the Yale Theological Seminary for more than two years, and was licensed to preach July 12, 1854. He also studied medicine from Sept., 1854 to March, 1856, when he received the degree of M.D. at Yale. He continued to reside in New Haven, devoting his time mostly to natural sciences, particularly chemistry. He invented and patented an ingenious process for printing bank bills with colors which could not be photographed, but the invention, though promising for a time to yield great profit, was imitated by rival inventors, to his detriment. Until the latter part of his theological course, his intention was to return to his native land as a Protestant missionary, but finding that he could not be placed on the footing that he desired, he decided upon another profession. In October, 1858, he sailed for Europe, and after spending two months in England, proceeded to Paris, where he pursued the study of medicine for a year and a half. He then turned his face toward Constantinople, and having lingered a while in Italy, reached his native city in July, 1860. He at once commenced the practice of medicine, but the same year he was appointed by the Turkish government to prepare a new kind of paper money, for which he proceeded to make extensive preparation. This plan having been soon abandoned, he was appointed Professor of Chemistry in an institution to be established; and was also made a member of the Imperial Mining Council. He continued to practice medicine, was appointed Court Physician to the Sultan, and attained a high position among the chief officials of the Empire. He became very wealthy, and lived as became an official of high rank. He died of apoplexy, at Constantinople, in May, 1874.

He married, Feb. 16, 1864, Miss Mugerdich, daughter of an Armenian banker of Constantinople. His first son, Serope Beaman, was born Dec. 7, 1864; the second, Milton Mugerdich, Feb. 18, 1867. He had other children, but no complete information regarding his family has been obtained. Salter, who visited him at his home on the Bosphorus in 1869, writes that Seropyan wished his boy Serope to follow him to our Alma Mater.

GEORGE GRISWOLD SILL,

Son of Henry Sill, was born in Windsor, Conn., Oct. 26, 1829, and fitted for college in that town and in Ellington, Conn. The year following graduation he was a member of the Yale Law School, the next year he studied with Hon. R. D. Hubbard of Hartford—now Governor of Connecticut—and was admitted to the bar at Hartford in August, 1854. He has since practiced law continuously in that city. For four years he held the office of Recorder, or Judge of the City Court. In April, 1873, he was elected Lieut. Governor of Connecticut, and was re-elected in each of the three following years. By an amendment to the State Constitution, his fourth term closed in January, 1877.

He married, Dec. 18, 1861, at Rockville, Conn., Mary J. Peek, and has four children: George Eliot, born Sept. 30, 1862; Grace Preston, born Jan. 8, 1865; Ellen Beecher, born Nov. 11, 1866; William Raymond, born Sept. 29, 1869.

MOSES SMITH,

Son of Dea. Nathan Smith, was born in Hebron, Conn., Aug. 16, 1830. He fitted for college at Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn., and Westfield Academy, Westfield, Mass. He taught three years, 1852-5, at Westfield, Mass. and Chester, Conn., then entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., and pursued his studies partly there and partly in the Yale Seminary, graduating at Andover in August, 1859.

He was licensed to preach by the New Haven East Association in May, 1857, and preached at Ansonia, Conn., in the winter of 1857-58, and at Farmington, Conn., in the winter of 1858-59. He attended one course of lectures in the Yale Medical School, in the hope of becoming a missionary to Western Africa, but was obliged to relinquish that purpose. He was ordained and installed pastor of the Congregational Church at Plainville, Conn., Sept. 22, 1859. In August, 1863, he was drafted for the army. Declining to procure a substitute, he entered the service as a private in the 8th Regiment Conn. Volunteers, but was appointed chaplain of the regiment Dec. 1, 1863, and held that position till the fall of 1865. Returning to Plainville, he continued his pastorate there till March 31, 1869. He then became pastor of the Leavitt St. Church in Chicago, Ill., being installed May 3, 1869, where he resided till the close of 1873. In "the Great Fire" of October, 1871, all the members of his church except two were burned out of business. He assumed the pastorate of the First Congregational Church in Jackson, Mich., Jan. 1, 1874, and still resides there. His church is, with one exception, the largest Congregational Church in that State. He is a member of the Corporation of Olivet College, at Olivet, Mich. On leaving his people to enter the army in 1863, he published a sermon, setting forth his motives in so doing. He published several other sermons while residing in Plainville, and two while in the U. S. Service. He visited Europe in the summer of 1878.

He married, June 12, 1860, Miss Emily A. White, daughter of Dea. Marcus White of Marengo, Ill. Their only child, Clayton White, was born April 4, 1875, and died Aug. 6, 1875. Mrs. Smith is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke Seminary, South Hadley, Mass., and is President of the Alumnæ Association of that institution; also President of the "Woman's Board of Missions for the Interior."

HOMER BAXTER SPRAGUE,

Son of Jonathan Sprague, was born at Sutton, Mass., Oct. 19, 1829. He fitted for college at Leicester Academy, Leicester, Mass., and entered resident at East Douglas, Mass. The first year after graduating he studied law in the Yale Law School, the next year in Worcester, Mass. In October, 1854, he was admitted to the bar in that city, and entered upon the practice of his profession, in partnership with J. H. Matthews, Esq. His partner dying in July, 1856, he accepted, in September, the position of Principal of the Worcester High School, which he held till January, 1860. Soon after, he removed to New Haven, Conn., and for a few months had charge of the "Webster School" there. He then resumed the practice of law, but when the war began he engaged heartily in the enlistment of soldiers. In the summer of 1861 he enlisted about 60 men for a company, who elected him captain. Declining this office, he raised, the same year, another company, of which he became captain in the 13th Regiment, Conn. Volunteers, and went with it to Louisiana. In April, 1863, he was wounded in the arm in the engagement at Irish Bend, La. In June, he volunteered as one of the leaders of the "Forlorn Hope" for an assault on Port Hudson, which, however, proved unnecessary, and in November of that year he was promoted to be Lieut. Col. of his regiment. He was afterward brevetted Colonel for gallantry at Port Hudson. He had previously declined the command of a colored regiment raised in Louisiana. He was taken prisoner at Winchester, Va., Sept. 19, 1864, but was released after five or six months' captivity. His last military service was performed in Georgia, and terminated April 25, 1866, when his regiment was mustered out at Fort Pulaski—the last Connecticut regiment to be discharged. A few months later he was appointed Principal of the Conn. State Normal School, at New Britain, of which he took charge Sept. 18, 1866. The next year that school was suspended for one year. In 1868 he was chosen representative from the town of New Britain to the Legislature of Connecticut, in which body he was House Chairman of the Joint Standing Committee on Education. The educational legislation of that year was peculiarly important and progressive, and the chairman of the Committee took a leading part in procuring it. The same year he was elected Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature in Cornell University, and held that position two years. In 1870 he became Principal of the Adelphi Academy, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and remained there till 1875. In September, 1876, he became Head Master of the Girls High School, in Boston, Mass., where he still remains. He has prepared and delivered several public lectures; one on "John Milton as an Educator," two on Shakespeare, one on Oliver Goldsmith, another giving his experiences as a prisoner of war, also one entitled "Riches and What Constitutes Them." He has published a "History of the 13th Connecticut Regiment," and a volume of the "Masterpieces of English Literature," which has gone through three editions; also an edition of Milton's Lycidas, and Irving's Sketch Book.

He married at New Haven, Dec. 28, 1854, Miss Antoinette E. Pardee, daughter of Leonard Pardee, and has four children: Charles Homer, born July 21, 1856; Sarah Antoinette, born Dec. 24, 1858; William Pardee, born June 24, 1860; and Goldwin Smith, born Oct. 17, 1869.

WILLIAM STANLEY,

Son of George Stanley, was born in Goshen, Conn., Aug. 9, 1830. He prepared for college at the school of Rev. Henry Jones (Yale, 1820,) in Bridgeport, and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, Sept., 1849, resident in Bridgeport. In the fall of 1852 he went to the Albany Law School, and at the same time entered the law office of William L. Learned (Yale, 1841) of that city. He was admitted to the bar in the summer of 1853, and soon after removed to N. Y. City, where he was in the office of Benjamin F. Butler, formerly Attorney General of the United States, till Jan., 1855. He then entered the office of Edwards Pierrepont, (Yale, 1837,) with whom he formed, in 1856, a partnership, which continued, with some interruptions, for several years. His office is now at 195 Broadway, New York City, and his residence is in Englewood, N. J.

He married, Sept. 3, 1856, Miss Elizabeth A. Parsons, daughter of Samuel Parsons, of Durham, Conn., and has had five children, three still living: William, born Dec. 22, 1858; Ruth, born Feb. 11, 1863, died July 1, 1863; Gertrude, born Sept. 19, 1865, died Oct. 22, 1865; Mary, born Sept. 26, 1867; Clara, born June 20, 1871. William Stanley, Jr., fitted for college at Easthampton, Mass., and entered Yale College in 1877, but left early in 1878, and is now engaged in the Nickel Plating business in New York, with C. T. Chester (Yale, 1845.)

EDWARD STERLING,

Son of George Sterling, was born in Bridgeport, Conn., March 11, 1831, and fitted for college in the school of Rev. Henry Jones of that city, (Yale, 1820,) with Reilly and Stanley. His home since graduation has been in his native city. He spent a few months, after graduation, in a bank where his father was treasurer, and in the spring of 1853 became partner in a company engaged in the manufacture of carriage springs and axles, in which business he still continues. He has traveled, for business, health or pleasure, in nearly every part of the United States, and in 1867 he took a journey to Europe. He has won a good position, as an honorable and successful business man, and a reliable supporter of the best interests of the community. He is a leading member and an officer in the South Congregational Church, and a member of the School Board of the town.

He married in Bridgeport, Oct. 18, 1853, Miss Rebecca A. Hawley, daughter of Capt. Bronson Hawley, and has four children: Jennie Harriet, born June 14, 1855; George Bronson, born Feb. 9, 1857; Emma R., born April 19, 1862; Alice B., born May 5, 1874.

WILLIAM M. STEWART

Was born in Wayne Co., N. Y., August 9, 1827. The following facts concerning him are taken mostly from "Lanman's Dictionary of Congress," edition of 1876. He removed with his father to Ohio in 1835, left home in his thirteenth year and prepared himself for college, chiefly in New York, entered Yale College in 1848, where he remained eighteen months, then left for the gold fields of California. He spent two years in the mining business, in 1852 commenced reading law, and during that year was appointed District Attorney for the County of Nevada, and was subsequently elected to the same office. In 1854, during the absence of the Attorney General of California, he was appointed to perform the duties of that office. He next spent about eighteen months practicing his profession in San Francisco, and afterwards practiced in Nevada City and Downieville. In 1860 he removed to the western part of Utah, now the State of Nevada, served in the Territorial legislature in 1861, was a member of the Constitutional Convention of the nascent State of Nevada in 1864, and was elected one of the first U. S. Senators from that State, for the term commencing in 1865 and ending in 1869. As a Senator he served on the Committees on the Judiciary, Public Lands, Pacific Railroad, and Mines and Mining. He was re-elected for the full term ending in 1875, and was chairman of the Committee on Railroads. Since his term expired, he has continued to reside in Washington, D. C. In 1865, he received from Yale College the degree of A.M., and was enrolled on the triennial with the class to which he had previously belonged.

He married in California many years since a daughter of Hon. Henry S. Foote, formerly U. S. Senator from Mississippi, and Governor of that State. His oldest daughter was married in Washington about 1873.

MELANCTHON STORRS,

Son of William Storrs, was born at Westford, in the town of Ashford, Conn., Oct. 2, 1823. He fitted for college at Worcester Academy, Worcester, Mass., and entered the class in September, 1850, at the beginning of Junior year, having previously been a member of Brown University, R. I. He taught for a year after graduation at the Deaf and Dumb Institution in New York City. He received the degree of M.D. at the Yale Medical School in 1853, and soon after commenced practicing as a physician in Colchester, Conn. In October, 1861, he was mustered in as Surgeon of the 8th Regiment, Conn. Volunteers, and served the full term of three years, about three-fourths of the time as Brigade Surgeon. His regiment and brigade did duty first with Burnside's Expedition to North Carolina, and afterwards in Virginia, participating in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, Cold Harbor, and many others. After leaving the army he settled in Hartford, Conn., and has now been for many years a successful and prominent physician in that city.

He married, Nov. 29, 1853, Miss Jane L. Adams, of Boston, Mass. They have had four children, of whom three are now living: Charles A., born April 28, 1855, died Jan. 25, 1859; William M., born Oct. 9, 1858; Frank H., born June 22, 1861; Jennie G., born July 16, 1867.

FREDERICK BOOTH SWIFT,

Son of Augustus Swift, was born in Cornwall, Conn., Aug. 31, 1831. He studied law with Judge Munson, in Delaware Co., N. Y., and was admitted to the bar May 7, 1854. He commenced practice at Newtown, Conn., but after a few years removed to New York City, where he now resides, his office being at No. 7 Murray Street. He was in the 7th Regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., when it was stationed at Baltimore, in the summer of 1862. No report has been received from him.

ADRIAN TERRY,

Son of Alfred Terry, (Yale, 1821,) was born at Hartford, Conn., Sept. 12, 1831. He fitted for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, where the family then resided. After graduation, he studied engineering two years in Yale Scientific School, and received the degree of Ph.B. in July, 1854. He remained in New Haven till April, 1856, employed in preparing an index to the Land Records of the Town, his father having been for many years the Town Clerk. Since that date his residence has been Knoxville, Tenn., except during the war. His letter, received the day after the class meeting of 1877, gives the following account: "Left Knoxville in Dec., 1860, for a visit to the North, which was prolonged on account of the rebellion, until I entered the 7th Connecticut Volunteers as Lieutenant, in September, 1861. Was appointed Captain in the Adjutant General's Department in October, 1862, and subsequently Major in the same Department. At the close of the war was serving as Adjutant General of the 10th Army Corps, with the rank of Lieut. Colonel of Volunteers, and Colonel by Brevet. After leaving the Army, in the Spring of 1866, I returned to Knoxville, having received the appointment of Chief Engineer of the Knoxville and Kentucky R. R. Co. In July, 1869, left this position to engage in my present business of manufacturing lumber, sashes, doors, etc." It should be added that his commission as Major dated from the capture of Fort Fisher, Jan. 15, 1865. He served on the Staff of his brother, Colonel, afterwards General Alfred H. Terry, throughout the war.

He married, Jan. 8, 1861, Miss Isadore Lee Wright, daughter of Dr. A. A. Wright, of Canaan, Conn. They have had five children, of whom three are living: Alfred W., born Feb. 24, 1867, died

Aug. 4, 1869; Frances C., born Jan. 7, 1869, died June 26, 1869; Clarissa H., born April 20, 1871; Harriet W., born Sept. 3, 1873; Alfred H., born Nov. 9, 1875.

CHARLES EDWIN VANDERBURG,

Son of Stephen Vanderburg, was born in Clifton Park, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Dec. 2, 1830. He prepared for college at Cortland Academy, Homer, N. Y., and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, Sept., 1849, resident at Marcellus, Onondaga Co., N. Y. For three years after graduation he resided at Oxford, Chenango Co., N. Y., where he had charge of Oxford Academy till the spring of 1853, then studied law, and was admitted to the bar in January, 1855. In September of that year he removed to Chicago, to practice his profession, and soon after to Minneapolis, Minn., where has since resided. In November, 1859, he was elected Judge of the 4th Judicial District of that State, and still holds that office, having been twice re-elected.

He married, Sept. 2, 1857, Miss Julia M. Mygatt, of Oxford, N. Y., who died April 23, 1863. By this marriage he had two children: William Henry, born July 15, 1858; and Julia Mygatt, born Oct. 16, 1861, died Sept. 12, 1871. He married again April 15, 1873, Miss Anna Culbert. Their daughter, Isabella McIntyre, was born Aug. 6, 1874.

*JOSEPH FREDERICK WARING,

Son of William B. Waring, was born in Savannah, Ga., February 13, 1832, and fitted for college at the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven. He studied law in Philadelphia for a year and a half after graduation, then spent a year in traveling in Europe, and was afterwards a planter near Savannah till the breaking out of the civil war. He was then made commander of the Georgia Hussars, of Savannah, a Cavalry organization of Revolutionary times. He equipped this corps at his own expense, and carried it to Virginia, taking part in the first battle of Manassas. He accompanied Stuart in his well known reconnoissance round the army of McClellan, before the battle of Seven Pines. He was actively engaged in all the Virginia campaigns, retreated with the army from Petersburg, and finally surrendered with the remnant of Johnston's army, and returned home. He was immediately appointed Treasurer of the Georgia Central Railroad, and in 1868 was promoted to be Forwarding Agent and General Manager of the same corporation, which position he held the remainder of his life. In the summer of 1876 he visited the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia. While there he learned that the yellow fever had appeared at Savannah, and though his leave of absence had not expired, he at once returned home. He resided temporarily a few miles out of Savannah, going to the city daily to perform his official duties. Those duties obliged him to spend several hours of each day in a very unhealthy locality. Three weeks after his return he was attacked by the prevailing epidemic, and died, after four days' illness, Oct. 4, 1876.

Col. Waring married, Sept. 5, 1863, at Madison C. H., Va., Miss Mary Lou. Early, and had three children, of whom only one is now living: Walter Fritz, born Sept. 1, 1870.

GEORGE AUGUSTUS WILCOX,

Son of J. S. Wilcox, was born in Madison, Conn., Sept. 20, 1830. He fitted for college at Lee's Academy in his native town. The first year after graduation he spent in Georgia, then removed to Detroit, Mich., where he has since resided. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in October, 1854, and has continued in the practice of his profession. In 1859 he made an extended tour in Europe. He has made frequent journeys to various parts of the country, and is often in New Haven, where he has many relatives.

JAMES ANDREW WOOD,

Son of Alva Wood, was born in Whitesville, Allegany Co., N. Y., August 23, 1828. He fitted for college at the Alfred Academy in that county, and at the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, Lima, Livingston Co., N. Y., and entered at the beginning of Sophomore year, September, 1849. After graduation he studied in the Yale Law School and graduated LL.B. in 1854. Soon after he entered the office of Charles Ives, Esq., in New Haven, and was admitted to the bar in April, 1855. Since that time he has resided continuously in New Haven, practicing his profession.
