In the Sunday papers I see— Pictures of smart—young

None of them as handsome as he,

It would be rapture when

-round me en-twined,—Like stripes on a barber pole,

On his lips I know I shall find—Kisses to seren my soul.

Burthen Slowly

He is the type,—Oh sisters, he is the type—to drive a wo-man insane.

T. R. H. Co. 290-5 He Is The Type
If he but talks—one half as well as he walks,—He'd rattle any girls brain.

He's a big sensation Surely a "wiz"— In imagination

I can be his— Hair is so sleek—just like a sheik—
Should he go a necking homes he will be wrecking.

Snap py and smart—Each little fluttering heart is beating for him alone.

Oh what a job to answer women who mob his telephone.

T. B. H. Co. 290-5 He Is The Type
Life without him would be just thrown away,

Satisfied he should be, for every day

I love him more and more, He is the type I adore
