THE:

JOHNS HOPKINS
HULLABALOO

A Year Book of the
Johns Hopkins University

Edited by the Class of MCMXIX
Foreword

HE S. A. T. C., the return of the old men, and the revival of the student activities have made the life at the University this year a strange motley. We have tried to give a picture of this life and at the same time, looking deeper, to show some of the factors which are carrying on the old Hopkins traditions and forming the new Hopkins spirit.

The Hullabaloo Board desires to thank the members of the Class of 1919, the Faculty, and the entire Undergraduate Body for the hearty support they have given the book. The members of the Associate Board, Mr. Richard T. Cox, Mr. Chas. P. McCormick, Mr. Thomas F. Hubbard, Mr. Carl G. Scott, and many others have contributed largely of their time and effort, and their help and interest have been deeply appreciated.
To

Dr. John Calvin French

Who by his sympathetic advice and hearty friendship has endeared himself to every Hopkins man, this book is respectfully dedicated.

The Students of the College of Arts and Sciences of The Johns Hopkins University hereby express to Murray Penney Brush their appreciation of his character and ability, their recognition of the great value of his work as Dean of the College, and their regret that his call to be the head of another institution will terminate his connection with Johns Hopkins.

To every student Dean Brush has been a loyal friend—a friend looking always to the best interests of those under his leadership. As a teacher and as a promoter and moulder of the best spirit in Johns Hopkins life, he will be gratefully remembered and honored.

Fair Alma Mater, long have we athirst,
From thy twin lips of Art and Science sought
Great truths of life in nature's birth-throes wrought,
Since young upon thy gracious lap we first
In faltering tones thy learned words rehearsed.
How rich those precepts sage, how cheaply bought!
Yet oft we dreamed of battles to be fought,
Armed by thy strength and in thy wisdom versed.

The hour for leave is come, thy sons must yield
The bounteous pleasures scattered by thy hand;
Into the ranks of justice shall we run,
And carrying high thy richly mottoed shield,
On shall we sweep, a noble, dauntless band,
Till truth shall free the world and peace be won.

He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one;
Exceeding wise, fair-spoken, and persuading;
Lofty and sour to them that lov'd him not,
But to those men that sought him sweet as summer.

Divinely tall and most divinely fair.

BAXLEY is one of the elite of the Class. There are few of us who have the joy of feeling that we are on the same plane with him. Occasionally he condescends to speak to one of us. He even goes so far as to favor us with his company now and then, but such occurrences are rare. We are always tickled sick when he favors us with a nod or a smile. On such occasions we feel as though we have made another step upward towards his sphere. In spite of his high and haughty manner a few of the more inquiring of us inwardly ask the question who he really is. But we shall not put these questions on paper, because the answers to them might shatter some people's illusions. We shall take it for granted that he is one of the great and mighty. Who are we that we should delve into things in another sphere than ours. Were we of his social and mental standing and knew him better, we might be able to say more about him. This we do know: he is very handsome; he is worshiped by every girl that ever has seen him; and he is the center about which all things revolve. Bow and scrape before him, and he will condescend to speak to you when he is in the proper mood; ignore him and he will be moved to make you feel the lowly position you occupy.

With him taken away from our Senior Class, we should be a forlorn looking lot. With him in our midst we can hold our heads erect, with our eyes proudly on his noble face, and feel thankful that we are permitted to be in the same class with him.
WILLIAM BLOOM

Entered Class in Senior Year.

And now am I, if a man should speak truly, little better than one of the wicked.
—Shakespeare.

In order to save ourselves many queries, let us say right now that the accompanying illustration was not taken from the cover of last month's edition of Better Babies. It is merely a pretty fair likeness of one cherubic youth, née Bloom, who tries to pass himself off among us as a bad, bold man. He gleans words of worldly wisdom from his Psych course, and tries to pass them off on us as his own experiences. The only trouble with this is that most of the rest of us have heard these stories first hand, and refuse to be fooled.

Bloom has spent most of his time—and money—at College in a psychological experiment he is conducting for Dr. Dunlap with his usual degree of application and earnestness: "Do women dance better than men, and why?" He is also quite at home in the "bug-house," as the biology lab is wont to be referred to by the uninitiated. The wall around the skeleton of Rameses III is all spattered with cats' livers, which "Willie" has thrown at it because some one said it resembled Dr. Andrews.

In spite of all his virtues, "Will" is an all around good fellow. He is sure to be found in the midst of anything that scents of "pep" and the Hopkins spirit. Not only has he succeeded in graduating in three years, but he has found time to go out for athletics, and to take part in many University activities.

RELUGE: “Doc” Andrews, of the Biology department, daily marches into the lecture room, closes the door, proceeds to his desk, and pronounces in stentorian tones:
“Call the roll, Andrews, Bloom,” etc.

Scene—Biology II Quiz. Two minutes after the bell. “Doc” Andrews seated in the front row, back to the door.

Enter George, who rushes to the desk, and with back to class, deposits his books and hat, at the same time exclaiming, “Call the roll.” Roars from the class. George turns leisurely around, discovers the Doctor, and . . .

It has been a real pleasure to have George as a classmate, and it is with a great deal of regret that we part from him. We wish him every success in his chosen field of medicine; and we feel sure, that with his ability and perseverance, he will succeed.

Note here’s to the pilot that weathered the storm.
—Channing.

T is with the greatest pride that we are able to present to you the beloved President of our Class. With us he is known either as “Teddy” or as “Squegee,” the origin of the latter being unknown. “Teddy’s” career at the University has included many phases of student life; he is a fine all-around man. The prominent characteristic in his make-up, however, is his military tendency. As Major of the R. O. T. C. Battalion he has shown excellent executive ability, and has done much to promote the success of the Battalion.

Combined with the beauty of Adonis, “Teddy” has an unusual hypnotic charm, of all of which he is entirely unconscious. These facts are probably the cause of his prolonged daily absences from the University, for they say the girls simply “go wild” over him. He usually arrives at 8:30 A. M., just in time for his 8 o’clock class, and leaves at 1 o’clock immediately after his last class, his interests in the time thereafter being left a mystery to the rest of us. It has been hinted that he spends a large part of this time in studying, but this seems rather inconsistent with his friendly approach and interest in the researches of his colleagues the next morning. Therefore we arrive at the conclusion that this time is spent in social activities—and that he has at last found his social equal.

“Teddy” intends to continue his studies in Engineering at the University of Illinois, and we are certain that he will become an excellent engineer. He may feel sure that he carries with him the sincere wishes of the class for the greatest possible success.

Look, he's winding up the watch of his wit.
By and by it will strike.
—Tempest.

HERE we have the class wit. Dodd is noted for his timely puns, and many are the groans and laughs that have been caused by him. His wit was of a peculiar kind, a sample which will explain it all.

Once Milton got huffy and "Johnny" picked up Dodd's slide rule to hit him. Dodd immediately yelled out, "Hit him with a log, not with the 'loglog.'" You know the kind, you laugh at him first and cuss afterwards.

Dodd has another distinction—he is a great Civil Engineer (according to principles laid down by C. J. T.), taking up M. E. He can letter like sin, and he is a first-class draughtsman (he designed this sheet). Only last year, he made the astounding mark of 125 in a Civil Engineering exam.

W. D. has become quite active in school affairs. He has been elected President of the Engineering Society, and he is also out for the lacrosse team. Here's to W. D. Cook, a clean fellow who radiates with fun and good humor.

I am satisfied to trifle away my time rather than let it stick to me.

Not another one of those military men. F. C. D. has just received his commission as Second Louie in the Coast Artillery, and let me tell you he is there with those gold bars flashing around. Outside of military stuff, Frank has always taken things pretty easy. He comes in about one minute before Class begins, and leaves one whole minute after the Profs get through with us.

Frank's other achievements (we call them that) are that he doesn't dance and that the women have no effect on him. (He says so himself, so it must be true.)

In Frank's Junior Year, he was a devil in C. E. He took things pretty easy, and when the exams came, he flunked flat. But F. C. D. just took a re-exam, made 97 and showed C. J. T. where he got off.

Frank expects to get his degree in M. E., but we predict that he will some day become one of our prominent Civil Engineers.

JOHNNY" is the shortest man in our Class and he is also, we bet, the smallest second Loogie in the United States Army. He was one of the first men of our Class called to the colors, and it wasn't in very long before he was sent to an Officers' Training Camp.

Of course, we realize that the fact that he was a member of the '19 Class had nothing to do with it. John L. is back with us now with his gold bars and six months' stripe very much in evidence.

As a dancer, "Johnny" ranks high, and he is also a devil among the women. He could have been seen at every one of those battalion dances of yore, but of late, owing to an important climax in this young man's life, he has sort of slowed down. In telling of this climax we are revealing a dark secret. "Johnny" is engaged to the sweetest girl in Annapolis —excuse our mistake, we mean in the world.

Now, since "Johnny" is back, he may be seen any day in the M. E. room with that old pipe in his mouth and that happy smile, either singing the field artillery song or reading and re-reading the letters received from aforesaid fair one.

E don’t know whether ψ is as “crooked” as his legs are, but we hope not. Each leg forms a semi-ellipse, and under favorable conditions one can see half the landscape between his graceful pair of bows. But in spite of his legs Cyrus is much beloved by the fair sex, perhaps because it is so easy to dodge him. He has as many girls as he has fingers and toes.

The girls, however, make up only a part of his life; he likes to sleep and eat. In fact, they are two of his greatest accomplishments. On one occasion he walked three miles to get a plate of ice cream (and after he had eaten it he had the gumpion to make one of his classmates pay for it). In passing, it might be interesting to note that he has had occasion to jump over the balcony in an apartment house much frequented by him until recently.

“Cy” is one of the most beloved members of our class; he has a great heart. In fact, everyone who knows him likes him. Here’s to you, “Cy,” and here’s to your boxes from —Emerson.

Here we have another embryo psychobiologist. During the summer, fall, and winter months, Karl toils o' evenings at the vivisection of dead cats, frogs, and amoebae. But "when that Aprille with her shaures soote" comes rolling 'round, Karl's soul seeks more etherial, more evanescent association, and he rises to almost unbelievable heights. It all started with his course in American Literature, when Karl was forced to write a sonnet for Dr. French. Having once started on the road of discovering his latent abilities, he stopped at nothing. He joined that merrie bunch of greensward gamblers known to fame as the cross country crew, and we have it on good authority that he has learned to fox trot. It is even rumored that he will make his debut at the Senior reception in company with Miss Thies.

Despite his passion for work, Karl is a fine fellow, and we wish him all sorts of success in his chosen profession.

Who doth ambition shun,
And loves to live in the sun.
—Shakespeare.

"T'S a long lane," said the poet, and he was right, for "Big Dick" is one of those fellows that we all "look up to." And "Dick," in return, looks down upon our activities in more ways than one, for the latter word is particularly offensive to his ears. It is said that he was so unaccustomed to work that the onerous duties of Assistant Class Cheer Leader in our Freshman Year nearly put him under. It was quite surprising to see his shapely form, usually inactive except in matters terpsichorean, dashing about with managerial impetuosity booking dates for our original minor sports team. The masterly way in which he almost closed a date with Tuskegee Institute elicited much favorable comment.

In spite of his premature manhood, "Big Dick" is a regular guy. It is rumored that he plans to carve for himself a lofty niche in the field of journalism; he has already reached the dizzy heights of the News-Letter Board.

Dodo.—A bird of curious and ungainly form... It has a round, fat body, a tail consisting of a few curly feathers, a large head, and an enormous bill, the upper part of which is hooked over the lower.—Encyclopedia.

HEN the balmy spring days come around, "Johnny" is never to be found at the University. He succumbs to the spring fever, bids adieu to "Doc" Gilpin's chem lab, and takes a little trip down the Bay toward the Goucher Theta's house party, whence he returns with tales of having kissed every girl there.

A few weeks before exams "Dodo" rushes around madly, "I gotta keep off this black list!—I gotta keep off this black list, if I'm go'n'a play lacrosse." And then he comes through with 9's and 10's.

Play lacrosse? "Dodo"? Well just ask Lehigh! With his wild war whoop and a mad swing of the hickory, he makes 'em look grateful when he takes the ball away from them.

John's phrase, "There's no doubt about it," is well applied when we say that a more true blue, cheery classmate never trod the Campus. Good luck, old pal!

For is he not
The Brummel of our

The idol of fair maiden’s

The incarnation of the mermaids art?

He does disport himself

And does he not upon the Display all the earmarks of a Thespian art?

For four long years
Minerva’s halls he Graced,
And he could read
And write
And swim
And sing
And dance as only fairies can—
The embodiment of all

And when,
In after years.
He will a bealer be

Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much;
Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.
—Cowper.

"PHIL," is one of the hardest working members of the Class. He has the ability to concentrate on his work however tempestuous the arguments or rough-house round-about may be. He has, however, been known to engage in battle for righteous causes; and when on one occasion he had downed the enemy, only the timely arrival of "Uncle Foolidge" prevented bloodshed. During the first three years of his connection with our university he adhered strictly to the "early to bed, early to rise" proverb, but in his Senior Year he indulged in the higher social functions and the late hours inevitably associated therewith.

Gottling is very deliberate; you may rest assured that his decisions are based upon full consideration of the subject. In fact, sometimes when we ask him a question, he is still in his pensive mood long after we have forgotten the question. One of his sidelines is music and sometimes he exercises his "golden tenor" in our presence. Every week he has to hasten from us in order to fulfill his appointment with the music teacher, and he has for some time made references to choir practice.

"Phil" is expecting to come back to his Alma Mater next year to study graduate Physics. We hope that he will enjoy his future studies more than most of us would.

With even steps and musing gait,
With looks communing with the skies,

—Milton.

GRAVE entered the University during the past fall, and was admitted to the Senior Class. He immediately went out for the Varsity track team, and those of us who read "Skeets" Strasburger's column in The Baltimore News knows that he is developing into quite a runner.

Although he has failed repeatedly to blow up the Mechanical Engineering Building by means of his various experiments in the chem lab, "Tom" is a great believer in "If at first you don't succeed," and from latest indications, intends to stick it out for three or four more years. We wish him all sorts of luck.

Despite his short stay in the University, Grave has shown a keen interest in all Hopkins matters, and we regret that our acquaintance with him has been so short.

ON Handsome Wight hails from those Elysian fields known to the vulgar as East Baltimore. Any time any night in the week, month, or year, he may be found holding court as the focus of the adulation of countless fervent admirers of the feminine extraction. A ladies' man par excellence, he nevertheless has retained that native modesty which endears him to his colleagues of the biology lab. He is a man of many and varied talents. He once attained fame as a musician second to none in the East Baltimore Sympathy Orchestra, which he organized and of which he was the sole member. He drives a Ford in true race-track style, for which he has attained popularity in legal circles. And last, but not least, he is reputed to have no equal in the Abyssinian national game.

Despite all this, Greenie has determined to become a doctor.

May he realize his ambition and thus atone for his wild youth is the earnest prayer of ye editor.

That man that has a tongue, I say is no man,
If with his tongue, he cannot win a woman.

The mention of Milton's name will always bring a smile to our lips. He has more peculiarities than any one man we know. His emphatic way of saying things, his spirit of independence, and his innumerable argument with us all have caused his fellow classmen a great deal of amusement. His arguments with "Jerry" will long be remembered. Every day he would have a new argument and the funny part of it was that we always chalked up one more for "Jerry." Milton has caused a great deal of trouble for himself with that independent stubborn attitude, especially in his connections with his instructors. M. L. is somewhat of a moralist also; due to his earnest efforts on behalf of the School, the morals of the Dormitory have been kept up as high as possible.

Milton has caused us a great deal of anxiety because of his frequent visits to a certain office on the second floor of the M. E. Building. We think it is for the company of the charming female therein, though we only venture to guess. At any rate, his spirit is greatly depressed at times, and he does not eat very well. Here's hoping that he will get over it soon, or else get married.

In the far future we predict Milton to become the second best engineer of Snow Hill. We reserve first place for "Ben" Truitt.

Beauty without grace is as violet without smell.

H! Here we have “Joe,” quondam star of the lately-defunct Kistlerian Society for the Propagation of Internal Gymnastics. History will tell of the noble work he did as the first president of that organization. It was he who developed into its present form the delightfully strenuous double flip-flop which has won fame for Charlie Chaplin and Adolph Bluch. It was he who inspired in the minds of his fellow-sufferers that revolutionary feeling which resulted in their emancipation from the fearful bondage they were enduring. But our wit is too feeble to adequately express his immortal achievements while connected with that organization. With the downfall of the society he turned his attention to Biology and such was his success that he was commissioned Assistant Grand Mogul of the Biology Laboratory. The work which he completed there has not yet been made public, much to our regret, but will, no doubt, be of great value to the Science and to Humanity. “Joe” intends to study medicine, and in preparation therefor is devoting much of his time to bones of all sorts and variations. We can commend his industry if not his choice of an outlet for his over-mastering genius. It is rumored that the Faculty at the Medical School is studying o’ nights now in anticipation of his coming. Well may they fear the questions he will hurl at their defenseless heads.

For all this manifest faults, our friend deserves to get along. We wish him long life and all honor and success.

AR be it from us to belittle the erudition of the most versatile member of the University Faculty. For, though few men know it, "Stew" Hecht is giving courses in Osteology, Psychology, Geology, and general information. The course in Osteology is the most popular of the four, although it is not all in accord with Dr. Andrews' idea of the science—nor does it deal with the same sort of bones. The course in Psychology is for—but the least said of that the better. "Stew" fears his lectures in Geology are not very successful as he doesn't know the ground well enough. When interviewed by a member of the Hullabaloo Staff, Mr. Hecht said that he will sever his connection with the University this spring, and that from present indications he will probably wander up Harvard way to pursue the study of Law. We can see him now as he rises to address the jury in some famous trial, with a genial smile spread over his benignant countenance, and begins, "Well, gents, as I was saying in my last lecture."

Why pick on me, we hear him say, and as usual he is wrong. For "Stew" Hecht is perhaps the most generally liked fellow in the Class. His genial smile and ready wit are mighty cheering on a dreary day. Hecht is a good football player; he has been a mainstay of the Varsity for the last three years, and has been all-Maryland center for the last two. So you see that he has not wasted all the time he has been at Hopkins, and we feel sure that he has laid a good foundation for his chosen profession.

Was ever book containing such vile matter
So fairly bound? —Shakespeare.

It has been with the greatest difficulty that we have been able to obtain any intimate information concerning the character of our most estimable colleague, Mr. C. E. Keefer, C. E., unofficially known as "Kid Gloom"; for we have seen so little of him during his sojourn here. For some reason or other it has been the general impression that he is a graduate student, and in some cases even an instructor. The only possible explanation we can offer for this is his usual air of superiority and indifference, or his characteristic intelligent look, or yet even his gray hairs.

By communication with the few most fortunate members of the Class upon whom he has deigned to spend his charms, however, we have discovered some amazing things about him. We have been told that he actually participates in a rough-house occasionally, and —confidentially—it has been suggested that he was largely responsible for the chaotic appearance of the Civil Engineer's drafting room upon that occasion memorable to all the Engineers of the Class. And sh—we have heard that some girls call him Clarence.

Those who know Keefer tell us he is very versatile; his interests are very broad, ranging from ancient Greek history and philosophy to the art of plumbing. Aside from this it is known that he usually "pulls down a ten" from his instructors. Of course we do not mean to suggest that he works for it, nor even that he cares at all about it; it just comes natural to him.

"OU" has spent the best part of his "four bright years of college" in the secluded wilds of the third floor Gilman, where "Tubby" and "Jakey" rumble and shriek and reign supreme. And from them he has learned that most important principle of economics—how to do a maximum number of things in a minimum amount of time. For would you believe it, that rosy-cheeked cherub in the nor-not-east corner of this page is one of our hardest workers, and is always to be found on hand when there is a job to be done. He is not a political grafter like his friend "Tommy" that he runs around with, but is a hard, conscientious worker.

You can tell that he was a "looeey" in the army by the way in which he barks out his answers in the Dean's History Class. He can't seem to remember that he is not carrying his company through the mysteries of close order drill.

On the whole, "Lou" is a darned good fellow, and if he didn't run around with such bad men as Thomsen, Leber, and Davis, might really turn out pretty well.

HRE is the President of our Student Council—you all know him. Kirk is a very able presiding officer, a forceful speaker, and a logical thinker. He has done very good work as head of the Student Council, and as President of the Interfraternity Board he has handled an extremely delicate situation very creditably. As a result of the latter experience he has become somewhat of a politician and quite a diplomat.

Have you ever noticed how busy Kirk always seems to be? He is invariably either just going to or coming from a Student Council, Interfraternity Board, or Athletic Board meeting, or looking for a member of one of those boards to discuss some matter with him. Or—and this is very often the case—he is looking for something that he has misplaced, such as a book or a note-book, and after searching for some time, he finds it—under his arm or in his pocket. However, this absent-mindedness probably only marks his coming greatness.

Harris has the distinction of being the only man graduating with our Class to get to France during the war. He left College near the end of his Junior Year to enter the Atlantic transport service, and as Quartermaster Clerk, made two trips across before coming back to College for his Senior Year.

DAME RUMOR has it that our "Phil" will enter the movie game as the producer of his own pictures immediately upon his graduation. If such be his determination, it behooves all movie-lovers to see their fill of such dudes as Wallace Reid and others of his ilk right now, for when the Apollo Belvedere of 1919 enters the lists, "Wally" and his colleagues must needs quit in disgust.

And that ain't all! P. K. has already achieved fame as a metallurgist for Uncle Sam, and receives flattering offers weekly, if not daily, from many African governments, who desire to secure his invaluable services. It has even come to our ears that he has perfected a system for the extraction of gold from iron pyrites. We won't swear to that.

His only fault is his horrible habit of haunting (alliteration) various undelectable houses of amusement. In fact, we have in our possession a statement duly sworn to by a reputable member of the Junior Class to the effect that he attended a performance at the Maryland last week.

However, damning that may seem, he is really an honest man, a hard worker, and a good friend to all those who are so fortunate as to know him well. We venture to predict a highly successful future for him in whatever line of endeavor he may choose as his life-work.

Smile, damn you, smile! 6-4-5

Be not alarmed, fair maidens, this is not the picture of a cloudy day, nor yet the features of the fabled sphinx, but only the physiognomy of our friend, George Lachman, Biologist, Chemist, Psychologist, Philosopher, etc., etc. Mark well his piercing black eyes and his curly black hair, for this youth is no mean character. George is majoring in Biology, but according to those who know, he has about as much interest in the subject as "Tiff" Williams has in the "Billy" Sunday revival in Kalamazoo—except, of course, in so far as it affects the problem of the great draught. But to return to our subject, George has been seen to smile three times during his last year at the University, and has once even been caught laughing, so that we see that he is at last beginning to forget his old love affair with "Ma" Greene, which ended in such complete disillusionment for George.

Seriously, however, Lachman is one of those chaps who really have to be known to be appreciated. Believe us therefor, that George is not so austere and solemn as this picture might lead you to believe; he just simply couldn’t smile the way the photographer wanted. George is a sincere, hard worker, and a frank, genial fellow, lacking just one thing—"pep." We trust that some day in the near future he may acquire this characteristic, and then—

BUSINESS? Not business, a business man is such a bore, and then again business men must work. If not business, a profession—an engineer, a lawyer, a farmer—ah, that's it, a farmer. No, I could not be a farmer; farmers are so provincial, and then again, farmers must get up so early. Possibly a doctor—no, not a doctor; doctors are so narrow, and then again I have no special talent for Biology. Business? Not business, a business man is—"

This is the despairing, frantic, continual revolution of an undecided mind—but a master mind; the mind of a thinker and scholar. For Henry says other things, too. Last year our Class won the debate, due in a large measure to Captain Miller. He also has nearly said things at the Varsity debates for the last two years—you know Henry is the eternal alternate, and has done much for the success of the teams with his usual spirit. As President of the Menorah Society he had occasion to say things, and as lance corporal in the S. A. T. C. he made a great deal of noise.

Henry, his words and his philosophy have been of great interest to 1919. What will he be? We know no more about it than he does; only we are sure that it will be decidedly worth while.

Up, up, my friend, and quit your books,
Or surely you'll grow double;
Up, up, my friend, and clear your looks,
Why all this toil and trouble?
—Wordsworth.

HARKEN unto those words, O Max, for they speak the truth. Novey stands second to Foard only when it comes to cramming, grinding, and all that which goes to make life at College miserable. This young specimen of the lexicophobians is a very quiet and evasive creature among his less tame fellow-students. But we dare not vouch for his behavior among the fair sex, for we can produce a witness who is ready to swear that he saw Novey walking up Baltimore street the other night with a young lady on each arm. The witness, however, admits to being drunk.

Ginsberg is authority for the fact that it is a very simple matter to find Novey at any hour of the day or night in the chem. lab., trying to prove that chloroform produces sleep. The question naturally arises how Ginsberg happens to know, but we will let that pass. Novey's favorite indoor sport is trying to see how much "Doc" Andrews knows about Biology, and, incidentally, letting that worthy Professor know that he deserves nothing less than a 10 for the course.

Max is a hard worker, however, and we feel certain that success will be his just reward. We are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to his first book—"Four Years in Three, or I Would Have Done It in Two If the Faculty Had Let Me."

Sang in tones of deep emotion, —Longfellow.

E'VE heard of “Tigers” and “Fidos” and “Rovers,” but here we have a real live woof woof of a “Bruno.” He was like many of us; also a “Second Looie” during his summer vacation. He can run like a son-of-an-Enfield and has been harmoniously instrumental in gaining countless laurels for Johns Hopkins.

Besides, he is a member of the Glee Club, and sometimes (when the audience is in a good humor) sings. Singing, however, is but one of his many accomplishments, and in spite of an inducing offer from the Metropolitan Opera Company, he has decided to devote his life to other things.

Sampson is a great fellow and we all like him, but there is one thing about him that we don’t understand. How did he manage to get away with Psychology and Geology in the same year, when both courses were held at the same hour? He got credit for both of them, too.

"Ben" is one of the most distinguished members of the Class, due, no doubt, to his size and the ambition he used to have.

However we must admit that in his Junior Year he led the way when it came to getting work done. Of late, however, this strict adherence to duty has been somewhat relaxed and "Ben" has become more like the rest of us. The cause of this laxity is too deep for us to analyze, but as a shrewd guess we'd say that "Ben's" habit of hanging around the University until six on Tuesday evenings (*_________) has something to do with it.

It was during his Junior Year also, that he made quite a deep impression on the academic department. A certain popular professor who instructs in philosophy even went so far as to say that he thought "Ben" had a great future ahead of him as a philosopher. And how disagreeably surprised he was to find that little "Benny" was one of the "dirty" engineers (aye, even a B. T. U. chaser.).

All told "Benny" is a good fellow, and we predict a bright future for him—if he lets the girls alone.

With good cause may the students of Hopkins give vent to their feelings in poetry whenever Schiavo gets loose. For is he not the most eloquent orator in college? One has but to mention Serbia and Schiavo is off, like a windmill a'ire, his arms whirling about, his face red, and a most wonderful assortment of choice invectives gushing from his lips. It is this display of oratorical powers that has often caused Ermenegildo's classmates to think of the brilliant future behind this would-be world administrator. But our hero's claim to fame does not stop at declamation, for "he is a soldier loyal and true; fit to stand by Cesar and give direction." One needs but search the annals of the S. A. T. C. to find evidences of Schiavo's military ability.

But Schiavo is not quite as bad as you would imagine from the above. He has many sterling qualities, is an assiduous student, and has gotten a good deal out of the time that he has spent here.

SCHMIDT needs no introduction to any of us, for who hasn't rooted for him time and again out on Homewood Field during football and lacrosse seasons. Dutch has been captain of both teams, and one of our mainstays on both of them ever since he entered the University.

He has an ever constant desire to put something over on someone, particularly his professors, and is always on the lookout for labor-saving devices. In his Junior Year he founded the present system in the E. E. and M. E. lab courses, when he and Vickers conceived the idea of having Baxley write up all their experiments on his typewriter, making carbon copies for them.

Early last year Carl decided to broaden his interests and set out to learn the "ways of a maid with a man," and judging from the number of nights a week on which he has no time for study, he has been very successful. About the same time he was persuaded to take up dancing, and after a few agonizing private attempts, he made his debut at one of the Cotillons. He is now a member of the Cotillon Board, and is of the opinion that dancing is almost as good sport as lacrosse.

Schmidt escaped the agonies of the S. A. T. C. last fall by going to the Officers' Training School at Camp Zachery Taylor, where he graduated head of his battalion as a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery. He was president of our Class in the Junior Year, and now is President of the Athletic Board and of the Omicron Delta Kappa.
ADOLPH SEEBE

A good heart's worth gold.
—Shakespeare.

ADOLPH hails from the wild and woolly West; i.e., the University of Texas. Owing to the fact that he joined us in our Senior Year, we have not had time to learn much about him, as he is of a quiet and retiring disposition—especially, he usually retires from our midst immediately after Class if not before. No doubt on account of the climate in which he has lived, he is easy going and does not approve of breaking speed records. We have found that he possesses a great love for art, in its highest form, at which fact we do not marvel after becoming acquainted with his former surroundings. He has a high appreciation of music, and has a baritone voice of no ordinary quality, which occasionally bursts forth in rapturous melody. His views upon the prohibition question have been expressed, but we will not repeat them for fear that the reminder of the impending drouth will make him sad. But were it not for this drouth we should hesitate to presume what effect the fateful combination of Wein, Weib und Gesang might have upon him.

Adolph is one of the most likeable members of the class and one of the best-natured. It should also be added to his credit that he does his own work (a rare accomplishment). We are truly glad to have made his acquaintance. May the highest degree of success in the E. E. world fall upon him.
Who can tell for what great ends
This darling of the gods was born?

Speak, speak, thou solemn guest,
Who, like a student dressed,
Spurneth the ribald jest
Murray has taught you.
Was't for athletic fame,
Or scientific name,
That you to Homewood came?
Tell us what brought you.

I was a studious youth,
Four years in three my proof,
I came here seeking truth,
Not acclamation;
My purpose here has been
Scholastic fame to win
And my life work begin

I'll speak—though hell should gape
And bid me hold my peace.
—Shakespeare.

HAKESPEARE may have first written the above lines, but little did he suspect how well he expressed the feelings of this subject of our curiosity. Siegel at times simply cannot control himself, and jumping up and down in his own oratorical fashion, he proceeds, in his deep, sonorous voice, to give an exhibition for the benefit of himself. When Siegel rises to address an audience, quiet reigns supreme, as all realizes that a genius is about to speak. But ye gods of the bull-ring, what is he slingin? Kind reader, you surely have not overlooked the wonderful expression of intelligence upon Siegel's face! Why, knowledge seems to vibrate over his entire visage, filling those beautiful brown eyes with lustre and learning! Cicero himself never looked like that!

Unfortunately, the Class of 1919 has been honored with Siegel's presence only for its Senior Year. This young man is one of those wizards who have succeeded after three years of skillful manipulation of credit-bearing courses, in having the privileges of graduating with a real class. Credit should be given where due, however, and Siegel comes in for his share, not only for this accomplishment, but for his interest in all things in Hopkins' life.

—Præd.

Would you think that the owner of that gentle countenance could be the mellifluously persuasive, sarcastically eloquent—in short, the silver-tongued ichthyophagus of the class? Nevertheless, that is what he is. Within the brief space of two years he has upheld the honor of his class and of the University in no less than five debates. Understanding thoroughly all the laws of logic and eloquence, he is in the habit of hurling his opponents down to defeat by sheer force of intellect and vocal power.

He is also a man “pregnant with the dramatic spark.” That spark burst into flames in the recent G. B. S. production, in which Leo was one of the many heroes. He brought the audience to its feet, for what purpose we will not say, and his fame was widespread among the Washington commuters.

Simon is spontaneous in scribbling, soporific in speaking, snappy in stalking, stylish in shirts, shoes, socks, and scarfs, somewhat sagacious in soldiering, and sometimes sober concerning his semi-serious self.

But didn't succeed. For "Bev" has staged one of the greatest all-around triumphs of any man who has been through Hopkins for some time. In the first place, "Bev" is making the course in three years—two and a half to be exact, for he was away in the army half a year—and is graduating "way up yonder" in the class.

He made the track team in his Freshman Year, and has run anchor man on the relay team for the past two seasons. He is captain of the track team this spring, and has done much, by example and precept, to build up that sport at Hopkins.

He was elected to Omicron Delta Kappa early in his second year, and has done much,

"ONNY" is one of the few of us who have completed the Engineering course in three years. He entered our class in the Junior Year and we have had two years of "drawing-room" association with him. We must marvel at the apparent ease with which he gets his work done, for although he does not seem to work hard, he is usually ahead of schedule.

We hear that as a child, "Dave" was very serious and studious, and that instead of indulging in youthful pastime, he spent hours deeply buried in ethical and philosophical works. As a result, he is frequently appealed to by a large following as arbiter in moral questions. This close attention to study possibly accounts largely for his nervous temperament, as well as for his ah-er-'sylph-like' construction. He never—oh never—indulges in physical rough-house, although he cannot refrain from wordy frays.

We understand that "Dave," although still young and immature (?), has for a considerable time been decided as to the ideal form of life. The daily arrival of scented envelopes during the summer he spent at Pittsburgh, in addition to frequent references to "his wife," by one of his close friends, indicate that he is a lady's man (note the apostrophe)

Sonny has been the energetic business manager of this book, and the sureness and promptness with which he has separated us from our money make us feel that he has been a most successful one.

Judging from the amount of interest John takes in the University postoffice, one would imagine that he entertained the thought of becoming in later years a letter-carrier or something of the sort, were it not for the fact that such an occupation requires too great an exhibition of energy. Not that John hasn't plenty of energy—we wouldn't have you believe for a minute that he is one of the usual type of cellar snakes or postoffice prunes—but this energy is developed along certain specific lines. John was by far the best guard in Maryland in his Junior Year, and we were looking for him to mount to still higher levels during the past fall had he not accepted a commission from Uncle Sam.

John has also given us a demonstration of how football methods may be successfully applied to lacrosse. His style is distinctly aggressive and quite unusual, but it brings visible results, and more over, John's hearty fellowship and good humor make him a valuable addition to any team.

It has been a pleasure to have been in the class with him, and we wish him most sincerely the success which he so richly deserves.
"Ah! Boniface, you also will be immortal," said Napoleon.

"How, General?"

"Are you not my secretary?"

To Holly we attribute the credit for beginning one of the most successful undertakings of our class. In his Senior Year Holly, prompted by his desire for the betterment of his class, organized with the valuable assistance of Zahn and Truitt "The Society for the Prevention of Swearing and for the Advancement of the Art of Delicate Expression," which has since become a never-to-be-forgotten organization. Our only regret is that the "idea" was not advanced in our earlier years, so that its accomplishments might have been more far-reaching; for we feel certain that in that case "Cy" and "Phil" also might have been won as colleagues in the commendable cause.

Holly's extraordinary executive ability manifested itself also in the leadership which he took in supporting the charitable cause of providing entertainment for the soldier(s) and sailors at McCoy Hall.

Still again did he display his ability and knowledge along executive lines, when he endeavored to show Sonny "the ropes" in Pittsburgh last summer. This time again he was—but, we've given you an idea of his ability by this time.

On the whole, Holly is a fine fellow; he is sociable, athletic (ask Driver), and last, but not least, studious. But, by the way, if you want to catch a train don't mention transformers or transmission lines, because Holly has a line all his own, the end of which has never been reached.

In each class, there is always one or more fellows that get by with a good deal of bluff and just the required amount of work. We don't say that A. W. is one of these, but we know that he doesn't break his neck working, and that his line to professors at recitations is most artistic.

Arthur is taking a combination course, that is, a mixture of M. E. and C. E. To the C. E.'s he says he works like “L” in M. E. and to the M. E.'s he says he works like “L” in C. E. and to himself, I guess he laughs at us all.

Taylor is the author of a certain brand of subtle humor, which is enjoyed by only a select few; A. W. himself comprises a majority of this select few. It's the sort of humor that makes you feel that if you ended his misery, you would be doing him and the world a favor.

After raking him over the coals a bit, I guess we had better apologize and say that outside of his humor, A. W. is all right. He is going out for track this year, and with those long legs of his, he should certainly win his “H.”

Why, among so many million men, must I be the one to think when others do not think, to act when others do not act, and to write because others know not how.
—Metternich.

Here we have the busiest man in the University. Although a mere stripling of eighteen summers, "Tommy" holds 90 per cent. of the political jobs conferred by the student body on any of its members. If you wish to have a talk with "Tommy" the only possible way is to sit next to him in class, when he will discourse at length about everything except the lesson. We must say, to "Tommy's" credit, that, when called on to recite, he was never known to acknowledge inattention, but would very tactfully make a blind "feeler," which encouraged the hood-winked professor to repeat the question. In the ten minutes following each class, "Tommy" attends three committee meetings, and then rivals Mercury in his haste to reach the next period on time.

The height of "Tommy's" ambition is to become Chief Justice of the United States, and we predict a great future for him at the bar. One of our irresponsible Freshmen was a little skeptical as to the kind of bar meant, but we trust that "Tommy's" activities in the Y. M. C. A. will vindicate him from any false interpretation which might be placed on our words. "Tommy's" quick mind, keen wit, and tireless energy make him peculiarly fitted for the legal profession and guarantee his success in that line.

From Freshman to Senior "Tommy" has been a representative man of the University.
His work and play alike have been characterized by ability, energy, and willingness. The sincere wish of the 1919 Class to this loyal member is success and happiness throughout life.
IKE Hancock "Ben" comes from fair Snow Hill. He came to us in his Freshman Year, an unsophisticated youth with a personal magnetism that attracted us all. Since then he has spent the larger part of his time in sophisticating himself. We feel that his trip to Pittsburgh last summer has been very helpful to him in this way; and in consideration of his catholic experience, we often have him solve our difficulties. Some of his closest friends say that he used to receive fragrant pink envelopes with the initials "B. R." (perhaps "B. R." means "Bennie" Rosenfeld, but we have our doubts).

Much of "Ben's" time has been spent in smoking, and as a consequence he has become proficient in the art of blowing smoke rings, an art which may later prove very useful to him. We do not think by any chance that he has been studying vortexial motion at the same time.

We understand that "Ben" intends to enter into business on the Eastern Shore and lay the foundation for a happy home. Therefore he may have an opportunity to make use of his four years' electrical engineering experience in case he has electric lights in his home.
I, thus neglecting worldly ends, am dedicated
To closeness and the bettering of my mind.
—Shakespeare.

OW bear with us a moment, girls, while we endeavor to correct the false impression conveyed by the above bit of poetry. "Ray" has tried to hand us this smooth line many, many times before, since he left the wilds of his native Annapolis woods and wended his way towards this famous seat of learning. But the truth will out, and we now have it. His real motive in coming to Hopkins, though well camouflaged by scholarly pursuits, was to make the acquaintance of the numerous female "grad" students with whom the University now abounds. For know ye all that James LeRoy is a so-called "ladies' man." He tracks them, by day and by night; not with the feverish energy of the novice, but with that slow, calm self-assurance that comes only with experience.

Tull's popularity is not, however, confined to the fairer sex. Every member of the 1919 Class is proud to call him "friend," especially those who profited by his timely assistance in History IV, where he proved to be the seat of all knowledge, the latter emanating to all distressed souls within a reasonable radius.

We are confidently looking forward to the day when Tull will be the chief executive of a great corporation, and we trust that in his prosperity he will not forget his Alma Mater.

Tityre tu patulans, recubans sub tegmine fagi.

“VAN” has the distinction of having shattered at least one Hopkins tradition. For many years it had been believed that “Tubby” Barnett held the world’s record for slow and aimless talking. But that was before Adolph appeared upon the scene. When we had a chance to test their comparative somniferousness in “Tubby’s” statistics course, it was seen that “Van” won unanimously—for even “Tubby” himself was asleep. It all dates back to Latin I, and Wilfred P. Mustard is entirely to blame. Virgil’s Bucolics, ably expounded by that worthy professor, were too much for him, and Adolph became an immediate and eager convert.

But in the spring of his Junior Year he raised him from his lethargy, and placed himself under the tutelage of the late lamented Eddie Hooper. We don’t know whether some Towson belle was to blame for this, or whether it was due to the natural inspiration of sitting next to Mechanic in class—“you never can tell,” as George Carneal would say. However that may be, we trust to see his wicked instshoot winning many a game for the Varsity this spring.

ALUTE! Here is Captain Vickers, of the R. O. T. C. "Wee-Willie-Wickers" tried to get in the Aviation Corps of the Army, but was too late to go into active service. As an anodyne for his disappointment, Captain Guild selected him as one of his captains. For the past three months "Wee-Willie" has been training the undergraduates in the art of war. We know little of "Willie's" belligerent abilities on the military field, but when it comes to a war of hearts he is right there. He has the ability of making every girl he meets thing that she is the first, last and only one he has ever met. My dear girl, whoever you are, if you should meet "Wee-Willie-Wickers," beware of his enticing charms. An army uniform is attractive, especially if it is a captain's, but if it is "Willie's—Pass him swiftly by,
And don't wink your pretty eye.

But lest you think that "Vic's" activities have been entirely along these lines, let us call attention to the fact that he has been a most active member of our class, and a mainstay of practically every board that exists at Hopkins.

When the Battle rages loud and long,
And the stormy winds do blow.
—Campbell.

THREE years ago the rough and rugged mountaineers of West Virginia came together and decided to send one of their number to an institute of learning. Just why they chose Mr. Vickers, of Huntington, was never quite clear. During his Freshman Year he displayed a singular aptitude in the organization of sundry uprisings against the superiority of a more elevated body. A broken handcuff that hangs perpetually over his desk and the scar of a scalp wound on the top of his dome are mementoes of one memorable evening. “Vic” was always on the spot for a good scrap and we who saw him stand by during the two years of the big fracas can only guess at the effort the watchful-waiting policy cost him. However, “God and the Faculty willing,” as he says, “Vic” will graduate this spring and thereby complete his course in three years.

“Vic” is a sarcastic cuss, as anyone who has felt the weight of his tongue can testify. Direct, forceful, and positive, he plunges into whatever he takes up, gets right at the heart of the matter, and generally makes a success of it. He is a good friend, whole-hearted and sincere, and one whom the Class of 1919 is glad to have taken into its midst.

“Vic” is not a ladies’ man. Up here at least he prefers to have a good “bum” with the boys, but we suspect that he keeps ’em guessing down Huntington way.

There is no more beautiful life than that of the student.
—Fr. Albrecht.

ONE of the most sincere and earnest students in our class is William Warthen. In fact, we doubt if any man has gotten more out of his college course than "Will." He was with us only three years, but in that time he had achieved such success in Biology that he was appointed instructor in the laboratory devoted to that science. He was further honored by being admitted to the Medical School the early part of the year under very exceptional circumstances. Despite all this, "Will" has had time to do research work along two great lines. He has made remarkable discoveries about the life, customs, and manners of the ubiquitous potato-bug in its native haunts in ole Ann 'Rnnel, and is now preparing an extensive work on the subject. He is also an authority on that strange insect known to savants as "Forder Flivenus," beside whose annual visitation on the Washington Boulevard, the fabled visitation of the locust pales into insignificance. He is also a disciple of Edison and Slonimsky, and an able one in that as in everything he tackles. His career in college has been characterized by a dogged perseverance which knows no obstacles, and a determination to achieve his end which will take him into the very front rank of his chosen profession.

He was tall, but exceedingly lank, with long arms and legs, hands that dangled a mile out of his sleeves, feet that might have served for shovels. His head was small, and flat on top, with huge ears, large green glassy eyes, and a long snipe nose.

—Irving.

Hail to Ichabod Crane, the jolliest fellow in the class!

When it comes to keeping us fellows in a good humor, both in camp and on the campus, "Tiff" takes the cake (not Hecht's this time). His keen sense of humor and his droll expressions have often kept us smiling even after exam marks have been published. He has a decided aversion to being called skinny, and in deference to his wishes we shall not do so, but we feel sure that he will have no objections to our saying something about his height. He has the honor of being the nearest approach to a giraffe in Hopkins, and oft have his long legs (and skinny) brought dismay to the camps of our enemies—especially Lehigh.

But "Tiff" is not all legs and wit. He has been a good student, and were it not for his disagreement on scientific grounds with a certain member of the Zoology Department, he would undoubtedly have been an honor man. In spite of what Startzman says, "Tiff" is one of the best lacrosse players in college. We understand that "Tiff" intends to become a physician and he may be sure that he has Nineteen's best wishes for a successful career.

AST September our friend Yu came to Hopkins from Foochow, China, and entered the Senior Class. Through our association with him in his Chemical and Biological courses we have found him to be a very agreeable and congenial chap, as well as an excellent student, and we regret that our friendship with him has been so short.

This modest, unassuming young man from the Orient has taught us to admire and respect the Chinese students, and the great nation which they represent.

We have profited by having Yu in our midst, and we wish him the best of success in his work for a Doctor’s Degree in Chemistry.

Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever,
Do noble things, not dream them all day long.
—Shakespeare.

When this sweet young lad entered the University, all of us asked why he did not bring a nurse with him. Everyone wondered why such innocence was permitted to travel about at will in this wicked and cruel world without the protecting influence of someone. During the first three years at the University, we tried to inject a little manhood into his personality. Many methods were tried; one was to give him a bath with all of his clothes on. But our efforts were fruitless.

The change came during the first three months of this year. He had to join—to his great dislike—the S. A. T. C.; and under the influence of his brothers-in-arms, principally "Holly" Startzman, we finally saw that he was beginning to grow up. He soon learned to swear, to drink, and to associate with all classes of the other sex. Of all the students in the class he holds the record for swearing the longest and the loudest. Rumor has it that he occasionally comes in in the wee small hours of the morning in a wretched maudlin state.

Prologue

It happened in the yere nynetene-fiftene,
Whan Murraye Brush was newlie chosen dean.
That certeyn youthes from outen Baltimoure,
From Washingtonne and from the Easterne Shoure,
From dyvers other places verilie,
Did gather at the Universitie.

Then lookt the dean around about the crowde.
(Thir Mien was quiet, though thir tyes were loute.)
“Now, by my beard and honoure,” sayde the dean,
“A fayrer classe than thys I ne'er have seen.
It must be, sooth, the classe yclept ’Nynetene.”

Canto 1

It is a custome of an olden yere
That everie Fresheman classe a flagge shal rear.
Whereat it is the Sophomores’ designs
To rend that flagge in pieces verie fyne.

Lyke to the Spartans at Thermopylae
Who woulde not yelde a foot though they sholde dye,
Lyke as the Roman soludierie in Gaule
Wolde sooner dye than see thir eagel falle,
Lyke as the worthie knightes of Arthur’s ringe
Stood back to back around thir fulleyn kinge—
So doe the Freshemen valoureuslie stand
To save thir banner from thir foemen’s hand.

Ful needlesse was the laboure that they made:
The flagge could scarce be ripped with any blade.
For it was made of sail-clothe verie tough;
Not soe thir garments, they were lighter stuffe.
And youthes who rushed full-clad into the fray
In borrowed cloakes went shiveryng away.

Canto II

O starres, that in your courses shyne by nighte,
Blessyng the carthe bineath with crystal light,
I wonder doe ye wot how manie days
The wearie students ponder on your ways,
As Newtonn set them forthe in lerned guise?
O notes, that from the solemnne organ ryse,
Wit ye how manie loops and nodes of thynye
Have held the sleep away from tyred eyne?
For in sky ther is no starre soe dimme
But physicks One doth take account of hym;
And in the air ther is no sound see stille
But Physicks One doth mesure it at wille;
And in the sea ther is no wave so lone
But Physicks One doth marke it for its owne.

Canto III

In scenes of peace and studious solitude
The noyse of battle breaks with clamoure rude,
Manie ther be that heare the voyce of warre,
And like Job’s warhorse snuff the fighte afar.
Wherefore they shew thir patriotick wille
By tending mules with late-acquyred skille,
By writing formal statements endlesselie
Of breeches denim, cotton, and O. D.,
Or scrubbing endlesse decks with soapie suds,
By eatyng chow, or eek by peelyng spuds.

Epilogue

Of all the strange adventures that bifel
This classe ther were not tyme nor space to tell.
Four yeares they wrought in science and in arte.
Thir tyme is done and they are loath to parte.

Junior Class History

The Class of 1920 entered the University under most auspicious circumstances. It was the first class to enter the University after its removal to Homewood, and it was the largest group of men which, up to that time, had ever matriculated in the University. The Class speedily took advantage of its unequaled opportunities and became a very prominent factor in the various phases of student life in the University.

In its second year of residence, the Class of 1920 was called upon to fill an unprecedentedly large place in the activities of the undergraduate body, due to the great depletions wrought in the ranks of the upper classmen by our entrance into the war. Although the Freshman Class was superior to us in numbers, we experienced slight difficulty in properly subduing them and rigidly enforcing the University regulations through the instrumentality of our “pep” committee. As there were practically no inter-class contests that year, we were able to devote most of our time and energy to those new and greater responsibilities we were required to assume, and uniform success attended our efforts.

During the summer of 1918, the Student Army Training Corps plan was promulgated, and Hopkins was selected as one of the institutions in which a Corps was to be instituted. We returned to an entirely military regime, in which the Class of 1920 lost its individuality, its members becoming merely so many parts of a pseudo-military machine. However, our men responded with their usual promptness to the needs of the new situation, and many of them became non-commissioned officers in the Hopkins unit. Under the S. A. T. C. plan, several groups of especially capable men were sent away for special training. Members of the Class of 1920 formed the great majority of the men so honored.

With the return to normal conditions, the undergraduate body has turned its attention to all its former activities, in which the Class of 1920 is taking its accustomed prominent part. Burger is serving as manager of the lacrosse team, and Stuart, Silberstein, Defandorff and Beall will probably repeat their last year’s splendid performance. Wyckoff is manager of the track team, of which Driver, Rivkin, Bartels and Norwood are prominent members. The Class is represented in baseball by Captain Littman, “Dick” Benson, Sickel, Bloomsburg and Evans. Twenty men have been mainly instrumental in organizing the Dramatic Club which produced a very ambitious production in the early spring. Aylett Coleman is Editor-in-Chief of the News-Letter, and has on his staff as Business Manager George Wagner, as well as many other ’20 men. We are well represented in the newly-organized musical club, as well as on the various boards. Many of our members who have succeeded in winning commissions have signified their intention to aid Major Guild in the formation of a successful R. O. T. C. unit, and a fair proportion of the Class has signed up for enrollment.

The only inter-class contest this year is the Junior-Senior debate, which will take place on February 21st. We have a strong team, consisting of Captain Lewin, Beard, Bartels and Driver, and we anticipate a splendid victory over overwhelming odds.

Sophomore Class History

That changes have taken place since the eventful day when we first placed our blue and black caps meekly on the tops of our heads and took up our life as Freshmen in the University! In an astoundingly short time we have progressed from a bunch of "green" newcomers to a class of "sophies, bold and cruel." Twenty-one has had an eventful history. When we arrived last year the upper classmen had gone to war in such large numbers that we were needed to fill many positions. The teams called on us to fill up the depleted squads, and we were able to supply them with ample material. Although lacking in experience, the new men made up for it in spirit and numbers. Jones and Carey in football, Sadtler and Brennan in lacrosse, Van Ness and Mullikin in track, Welliver, Webb and Jones in baseball, won their "H's," and many others showed the kind of stuff we had in our Class.

In other activities 'Twenty-one was equally progressive. The work of Heiner and Burstein was responsible for the first debate between Freshmen and Sophomores, which is to be repeated this year and which will probably be a regular institution in the future. We showed the Sophomores the efficient way to handle a banquet by conducting ours without the embarrassment of any hostile interruptions. And when it comes to class rushes we have proved our ability to defend or capture the flag with equal facility—if you are interested, just ask any Sophomore to show you a piece of 'Twenty-two's standard.

The absorbing occupation of Freshmen and Sophomores has always been to imbibe the spirit of the College, the proper deference toward upper classmen, the traditional attitude of respect and observance of regulations and, in turn, to inculcate these principles into the classes which follow. 'Twenty-one wore its caps and buttons and black socks, sang its songs, and took its paddlings from 'Twenty; but it soon found the methods of enforcing regulations so inefficient as well as unpleasant that it made the notable decision to assist, by means of a "pep" committee, in upholding the traditions. Not wishing to give the next class opportunity or necessity for such a step, we have taken up their edification in earnest, and with frequent resort to forcible means.

The Students' Army Training Corps pretty well upset our college life last fall, but it had the advantage of bringing the students together far more than ever before. After receiving our discharges we returned to our former life with plenty of "pep." The Sophomores are supporting athletics and other activities in full force. With four men on the S. A. T. C. football team, fifteen out for lacrosse, four stars on the swimming team, and similar representation in other sports, we have no fear of any contests with the Freshmen. We are well represented in the play to be presented by the newly organized Dramatic Club, on the News-Letter Board, and in every other activity. In short, 'Twenty-one is doing its best to make a name for itself in the annals of the University.

Freshman Class History

During the first part of this year, the various classes of the University were not properly organized. It was due to this fact that the Class of 1922 made only a slight impression on its fellow-students before January 1, 1919. It was only necessary for the Class to be organized, however, for its presence to be felt by the upper classmen, and especially the Sophomores.

A rush between the Sophomores and Freshmen is an established event which is staged each year. During the past winter there were two—an informal rush preceding the regular one by about a week. This first rush took place in front of the M. E. Building and was the result of the upper classmen using their paddles...

too freely. During the midst of the fighting, when blows were flying thickest, the Sophomores rushed for the hose inside the building. (They must have seen some of the red-headed Freshmen and thought that they were on fire. But, Sophs, don’t you know that a Freshie is too “green” to burn?) The first year men rallied to the cause and succeeded in taking the hose away from the Sophomores. When the time for the next class came around, the fighting stopped, and the participants in that first scrap went to their classes breathless, tired, mud-stained, and, in many instances, lacking essential parts of their clothing.

But January 29th was the day. All of the paths on the University grounds were painted by representatives of the two classes, some of the signs boosting 1922, others 1921. The former class was successful in putting a banner on the tower of the C. E. Building a few minutes before the rush began. Coatless, vestless, collarless, shirtless, the Freshmen and Sophomores lined up opposite each other in the space between the M. E. and C. E. Buildings. At the signal, given by a member of the Student Council, the two classes rushed together. For fifteen minutes the fight raged. Here a Sophomore was tumbled; there a Freshman. But the Sophomores were bested in the fighting. However, we must acknowledge that they were successful in securing the 1922 banner, although they did not obtain it until the fifty-ninth part of the fifteenth minute.

Even though the Freshmen lost their banner in the rush, they gained one point. The Sophomores were made to realize the power of the underclassmen, and ceased to worry them for fear of having the paddling reversed.

The Class of 1922 is imbued with the true Hopkins spirit, and is determined to be successful. It did get off to a bad start by losing the rush, but three years lie still ahead, during which things can be accomplished, not only for the members of the Class, but for the good of the whole University.

THE BATTLE ROYAL

THE SOPHOMORE-FRESHMAN CLASS RUSH
Though I ponder equations, my wandering thought Like light on a spherical mirror* is brought
To construct for my fancy an image of you—
But a virtual image that will not come true
Until you decide that it ought.
Though matter forsook occupation of space,
Though the poles of the compass reversed in their place,
Though the lines of the spectrum should meet or divide,
I could spare them no thought for my thought would abide
On the manifold charm of your face.

Your eyes are as bright as the luminous gleam
Of electrified ions* that cluster and stream
On the positive pole in a vessel of glass
When a current is sent through a rarified gas,
So brilliant and fair do they seem.

And must I forever remain thus afar
In immutable orbit like world about star,
Tangentially driven and normally drawn,
No farther, no nearer, but endlessly on?

The Y. M. C. A.

The aim of the Y. M. C. A. for the year has been to satisfy needs that are not met in the curriculum or by any other organization. These needs, in general, are of three kinds.

The Social Need and How It Was Met. Moving pictures have been given once a week. There have also been "get together" meetings to arouse interest in athletics. Better understanding between the American and the foreign students have resulted from the informal dinners, held monthly at the Johns Hopkins Club, at which Faculty members, foreign students, and American students were guests. The evening was made more attractive by prominent speakers, among whom were Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, President of the University, and Hon. Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of Maryland. That Hopkins men have caught the spirit of service was shown in the Social Service work. Classes in English for Italians and Russians and classes for boys in gymnasium have been conducted. Among these foreigners, Hopkins men have also taught Sunday-school classes and the rudiments of the United States Government. Another thing which proved attractive was the teaching of English, bookkeeping, and business to the blind soldiers at U. S. General Hospital No. 7.

The Educational Need and How It Was Met. So many men requested the opportunity for discussion of current problems that the “Y’s” Open Forum was established. The first meeting discussed the “League of Nations,” with Dr. John H. Latané as leader. The attendance at this and subsequent meetings was indicative of the fact that about one-half of the Student Body wanted just what the Open Forum was giving. The second meeting discussed Industrial Democracy; the third, the Church of the New Democracy. There was also a strong call for lectures on the different professions. Some of the Life Work Lectures were “Medicine and Public Health as a Professional Career” by Colonel William H. Welch; “Banking,” by Mr. Eugene Levering; “Law,” by Attorney General of Maryland, Albert C. Ritchie; “Educational Opportunities,” by Philander P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education; and “The Claims of the Ministry and Foreign Missions,” by Dr. John McDowell.

The Religious Need and How It Was Met. The Deputation Team, with a ringing appeal in its big message, aided by an excellent quartette, did fine service in the churches around Baltimore. The definite appeal for Christian living has been presented publicly only once. The last Life Work Lecture was an appeal for Christian living in all phases of activity. Throughout the year, however, there have been many prayer groups, where three or four men met daily for prayer and discussion.

One hundred and six
In January, 1919, the Johns Hopkins Dramatic Club was organized. The founders of the Club had three main purposes in view—first, to start work in a line of student activity in which they felt Hopkins had hitherto been deficient; second, to bring the University in a new way before a larger class of the public; and third, to provide an opportunity for men who are interested in dramatic work.

The first important problem confronting the Club was the selection of a play. After reading over a large number of plays of various kinds, the Club chose "You Never Can Tell," by George Bernard Shaw. "You Never Can Tell," while, as the author says, a "pleasant play," is a really significant work, and quite worthy of production by a club representing the University.

Next, a coach had to be obtained, and here the Club was most fortunate. Miss Clementine Walter graciously offered her services to the Club. No one in Baltimore has had better training nor is better qualified to coach such a play. Miss Walter came to us after two years' experience in Paris, and two years at the Sargeant School in New York. Her efforts have been untiring, and whatever degree of success the play attains is due entirely to Miss Walter. The Club wishes to take this opportunity of publically thanking Miss Walter for all she has done, and of telling her how much we value the training she has given us, to say nothing of the pleasure of association with her during the period of rehearsals. As the Club grows older and becomes an established institution at Hopkins, it can never forget the great debt it owes Miss Walter, who, by her untiring efforts, sympathetic advice, and staunch friendship, did so much to make the Club succeed.

Tryouts were held for the various parts, and after numerous shifting Miss Walter chose the following cast:

THE Johns Hopkins Zionist Society has now been in existence for a year, and during this brief period has made an enviable name for itself in Jewish academic circles all over the country. Its object is two-fold: it aims, first, to give its members an adequate acquaintance with Jewish history and the development of the modern theory of Jewish nationalism, and, second, to render whatever assistance it can in the task of making the international Zionist organization a vital power for good. It holds monthly meetings which are addressed by men who are qualified to speak on the various phases of the Zionist movement; and it conducts a study circle, which meets weekly for the reading of reports on, and the discussion of, the history of Zionism. It was mainly through the efforts of the Hopkins group that the Intercollegiate Zionist Association of America was enabled to publish its first annual—"Kadimah"—which appeared in June, 1918, and created no little stir in the ranks of the Jewish intellectuals of the United States. The group is at present occupied with the preparation of a source-book in Zionist history.

During the existence of the Students' Army Training Corps, the work of the Johns Hopkins Zionist Society, as was virtually all undergraduate extra-curricular activity, was held in abeyance; with the demobilization of the S. A. T. C., however, the Society has resumed its work, and looks forward to several months of vigorous effort.
ONCE IN A WHILE.
IF WE HAVE
NO OTHER ENGAGEMENT,
WE WORK IN THE LABS.
Military Activities

The S. A. T. C.

It came to pass, in the year 1918, that those who hold the dogs of war gathered themselves together in council and said unto themselves, "We will train our youths in the manly art of war!" Whereupon they conceived an institution which they called the S. A. T. C., and established many units thereof throughout the land. Then said they, "We must have many to lead and train them," whereupon a wholesale order was placed for shave-tails.

And it came to pass at the University which is called after Johns Hopkins, in the town of Baltimore, that their commandant, an excellent officer whom they loved and trusted, was taken from them, to be commander over a district, and in his stead was sent another. Now this other had done great service overseas, and had been wounded at the front, but he was lazy withal, and loved the swivel chair—and he knew not even the sins of his own shave-tails.

Among the shave-tails, there was one who towered above all the rest, many cubits tall, terrible to look upon. He did have for his own a little dog, which followed him in all places and at all times, even as he stood before his company to try to command it. Now it happened that sundry of the privates did laugh at the antics of the dog, for which heavy penalties were imposed upon them, for the dog's sake. And if perchance there were among that company any who did have a dirty or greasy gun at inspection, even the same were compelled to wash the dog on Saturday, after mid-day, before they could go their way. There were also others among the shave-tails who were lordly of manner and nasty of speech, and these were disliked in the samewise by their men and by each other.

And as time passed, it was found that the shave-tails could not be so plebian as to rise up early in the morn. Hence it was that a detail was appointed from the members of the guard to awaken them in time for breakfast, going into their chambers and saying: "Sires, arise and gird your loins, for another day hath been here several hours, and breakfast is ready." Furthermore certain Juniors and Sophomores were appointed to call the roll, to inspect quarters and take names, and to stand reveille in the shave-tails' places. And these same did become very lordly over the privates, even the Seniors among them, and treat them unfairly.

and make it hard for them, and put them on K. P., and did constantly lick the shave-tails' boots, because of their three stripes.

Now there were among the youths at this University certain of them who did wear blue garments, and were called gobs. In sooth they were a hard-boiled crew, and did shoot at craps continually, and did demean themselves unseemly in other ways.

But as it happened, on a certain day, there was a great hub-bub and much talk of an armistice, for yea, even to these distant shores word had come that the war was over. Within the month, those under command who wore the brown were called before His Dignity in the swivel chair, and were given their shekels and allowed to go their way in peace. And those who were gobs were called up and given their shekels also, and allowed to depart, withersoever they list, but were held in reserve against the time of need.
THE BATTLES OF FORT HOPKINS
WITH the R. O. T. C. the story is quite different. The splendid organization which was built up by Captain Guild last year, and which held such a high position among the units of other colleges and universities, merely suspended operation and yielded its place to the S. A. T. C. The period of suspension is past now, and the R. O. T. C. instruction has been resumed under its old commandant.

It is to be regretted that everybody had such a mouthful of S. A. T. C. as to cause the R. O. T. C. to suffer from lack of numbers. This year, of course, was a transition period, and it is hoped that next year, after the unit is on a firm foundation, it will receive the support of the entire student body. The Hopkins R. O. T. C. unit at this moment has by far the largest voluntary enrollment of any institution in the district, not in percentage, but in actual numbers. The War Department showed its appreciation of this fact in a way seldom made manifest, in the following letter to the Senior Class:

WAR DEPARTMENT
COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND SPECIAL TRAINING
Section of Training and Instruction Branch
War Plans Division, General Staff
Washington

The President of the Senior Class,
Johns Hopkins University,
Baltimore, Md.

DEAR SIR:

The Committee on Education and Special Training has learned through the District Inspecting Officer of the action taken by your class on Thursday, January 30, 1919, in voting to give full support to the R. O. T. C. unit at Johns Hopkins University. In behalf of the Committee and of the War Department I desire to thank your class for their zeal and loyalty. While the Committee will always be glad to co-operate in every possible way, we realize that the success of the R. O. T. C. must depend on the students which belong to it. We are confident that the same patriotism which you displayed so notably in time of war will move you in time of peace to make yourselves ready for any future emergency that may require your services. We hope that your fine spirit will be communicated to other colleges.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) F. J. Morrow,
Colonel, General Staff Corps, Chairman.

Captain Guild was consequently able to secure the services of Captain W. J. Schmidt, of Lehigh University. The University is thus fortunate enough to have two capable and experienced officers as Commandant and Assistant Commandant, where heretofore it has had only one. The unit here and the courses of instruction are undergoing several changes and broad development at present. Under the new plans, aside from battalion formations and parades, the Freshmen, formed into a provisional training company, are the only ones who will spend a great deal of time on the intricacies of close order drill. They, however, will be so thoroughly drilled that they will know close order drill by the end of the year. That will leave the upper classes and Sophomores time to take up the hundred and one things an officer has to know in addition to the drill.

In addition to their intensive drill work, the Freshmen will have small problems for infantry to work out on the relief maps. The Sophomores will specialize on Military English, Small Problems for Infantry, or Military Strategy, and Topography. Those of the Juniors who know drawing will have a complete year of Military Field Engineering. Those who do not know drawing will be given one semester of drawing followed by one semester of the Field Engineering. All will have Minor Tactics on the relief maps. The Seniors will have Military Law for the first semester, and work in practical administrative duties of a company commander in the second. With this extensive program, which is partly under way this year, the unit ought to develop really good officers, which is its ultimate object.

The University has enjoyed for the past scholastic year a privilege not given to many institutions. In a great war such as this one, it is no mean honor to have on the military staff of the University an officer of an allied army. But such an honor was given us when Captain W. H. King, Distinguished Service Order, Canadian Army, was allowed by his government to come to us. He was Commanding Officer of the School of Military Art, the night classes in military training for business men, and was actively connected with the training of the R. O. T. C. It is with great regret that we learn that Captain King will not be with us next year.

TOPOGRAPHY CLASS
SEVERAL rather important changes have been made in the management of athletics during the past year. An undergraduate, Charles T. Leber, '20, was appointed General Manager of the Athletics, with the title of Acting Graduate Manager, and when he left the University for service in the Navy, another undergraduate, George H. Evans, Jr., was appointed to fill his place.

Swimming, basket-ball, and tennis have been recognized by the Association as minor sports, and appropriate insignia will be awarded to men making these various teams.

Capt. B. Russell Murphy, who had been serving as Athletic Director at Camp Dix, returned to Hopkins and reassumed his duties as football coach and director of athletics. At the same time, paid alumni coaching for the various teams has been abolished. Although a radical step, the Board felt that it was necessary for the future good of athletics at the University.

HOPKINS
THE Black and Blue football team of 1918 faced a very peculiar situation. The University opened October 1, but because of the "flu" epidemic all classes were suspended for almost a month. It was therefore almost November 1 before the team got its first practice. As a result of the S. A. T. C. the original schedule had been cancelled and it was necessary to secure new games. This was finally accomplished after a conference of the four larger state colleges—Johns Hopkins, Maryland State, St. John's and Western Maryland. A schedule having been arranged, Hopkins faced another very serious problem—where to find a coach. At last we secured the services of "Ned" Harlan, and he managed to whip the team into shape for the opening game.

Under the leadership of Captain "Ed" Cashel the team played a fighting game. They fought over every foot of ground, and sprung a big surprise on the student body by winning the opening game with St. John's. In the next game the team was not quite so aggressive, with the result that Western Maryland defeated us for the first time in years. Then came the big game with Maryland State. After having beaten both St. John's and Western Maryland, State expected an easy victory. But Hopkins came out with the same spirit that had beaten St. John's, and held State to a scoreless tie.

This year, for the first time, the squad had the benefit of day-light practice, and the improvement in the team was quite noticeable. Next year, with day-light practice and the able tutelage of Coach Murphy, the squad, which promises to be one of the best ever turned out by Hopkins, should add much to the football reputation of the University.
The Situation as Viewed by the Assistant Manager

"Clothes!" "Sticks!" "Shoes!" "Where's my old jersey?" "Say, don't we get anything to wear?" "Get a move on, you Ass Managers!" Such are the cries that pour forth when sixty odd men report to a manager who expected twenty-five or thirty at the most. I mean it, old T. Terry's roll book shows the grand total of sixty-two blood-thirsty, scrappy lacrosse players, four assistant managers, and the Lord knows how many coaches.

Fourteen of the above-mentioned players have the right to wear an "H" if they want to. Can you imagine it? A whole team and then some of "H" men. It sure is lucky that yellow dye isn't as expensive as black. Burger is thinking of having the "H's" made of gold braid, but then the crowd of old gobs on the team might want to stop and salute every time they passed one of them, so I don't guess he will do it.

Now it is a pretty hard job to pick twelve men from a crowd of sixty-two, but it looks like the defense might—this is not a promise—line-up as follows: Sadtler or Daugherty, goal; Meyer, point; Morley, cover-point; Schmidt, first defense, and second and third defense to be fought over by Hoffman, Brennan, Kennady, Cashell and Barrett. Center will probably be held down by Top Sergeant Tiffany J. Williams, S. A. T. C.

So much for the defense and center. The big fight is on the attack. Fighting John Frisch, who was the only man to scare any one at Navy last year, and old "Eggy" Sutton, who still has one more year of league lacrosse to go, will probably play second and third attack, although "Reds" Beall and Tome are giving them a grand run for their money. "Sam" Silberstein will more than likely play first again, with Baurenschmidt to fill the job if "Sam's" ankle goes back on him. (Darn football anyway, it's always interfering with the major sport.) Captain Baxley has inhome cinched. Outhome will be filled by Stuart or Defandorf. Mind now, we are not taking a Bible oath on any of this, 'cause there are some darned good men whom we haven't mentioned, and the possession of an "H" doesn't mean a regular job by any means. We might give some straighter dope perhaps if the Hullabaloo Board didn't want this article in before the team has even gotten out of doors.
Lacrosse—Cont.

The squad sure does owe it to the Alumni for helping to coach this year. Besides those two famous performers, "Father Bill" and Reaney Wolfe, to whom Hopkins owes everything it has in the lacrosse line, Gerhardt Schmeisser, "Johnny" Knapp, Alan Voshell, "Bill" Swartz and others have helped considerably. Incidentally they are getting in shape for the licking they are going to get on April 5. "Dick" Woodward was down one day, talking his head off and saying nothing as usual. He says Penn has 250 men out for the team. Oh well, can't scare us. Only twelve are allowed to play at once, anyway, even if they do allow the crowd to walk all over Franklin Field like they did last year.

Well, do we win another championship? Well, the team wants to play Harvard, Yale and all the rest of the Northern Division (all on the same day, of course) for the championship of the country, and there are even rumors that Toronto wants to come down and see what has happened to that world's championship we took away from them a couple of years ago. But they've got a slim chance of getting it, for this year's team is one of the rarest mobs that ever put on hat and gloves as long as Hopkins has been playing lacrosse, and they are just as good as they are numerous, which is going some.

THE FACE-OFF

NEAR THE VARSITY'S GOAL

"COVER UP, DEFENSE"

SCENES FROM THE VARSITY-ALUMNI GAME
MID the many distractions of a war camp Hopkins the track team held its organization meeting early in the fall. All of the old men who were still at the University, and a few new men attended and, although the turn-out was small, it was full of "pep." As Captain-elect Beverly Smith was at an Officers' Training Camp, Warren Driver, a member of last year's championship mile relay team, was chosen captain. (The demobilization of the S. A. T. C. and the Christmas holidays prevented track practice, however, until the resumption of the regular collegiate work at the beginning of the new year.)

By the first of January the track squad was organized and practice was begun at the cage on Howard street. In February several former stars returned to the University from training camps, among them Beverly Smith. With a fine exhibition of Hopkins spirit and loyalty to the team, Captain Driver withdrew from the leadership of the team in favor of Smith. All the letter men of the previous year were now back at work with the squad, although the heavy schedule at the Medical School prevented Fiorio, Sutton, Leadbetter and Seagraves from practicing with the team every day. Smith, Driver, Norwood, Barte's, Mullikin, Van Ness, Rivkin, Merriken, Haseltine, and Lord formed a nucleus of experienced men around whom to build the team, and rendered valuable assistance as coaches for the new men, since "Joe" England and Coach Murphy were not able to be with the team until the outdoor season was well under way. Among the new men Taylor, Crist, Graves, a letter man from Oberlin, Blackstone, King, Mossom, and Heiner have done excellent work.

The unsettled conditions resulting from the war made it impossible to hold the annual Hopkins-Fifth Regiment Indoor Meet; the entire team, however, will be entered in the indoor meet to be held at the Armory by the second regiment of this city, and the chances of winning the S. A. I. A. A. point trophy are very favorable. The first of February the team moved to Homewood to start its outdoor practice on the wooden oval laid in the balloon shed. Although many of the Northern universities have had out-door winter practice for some years, Hopkins is the first of the Southern group to introduce the plan. The nearby lockers and showers in the Mechanical Engineering Building are used by the squad.

NDER the leadership of Capt. Lawrence Littman the baseball team this year promises to have one of the best seasons it has ever enjoyed. With ten letter men back from last and previous years, and a large number of promising candidates out for the different positions, the competition was much stronger than in previous years and a better team resulted.

The season was officially gotten under way at the organization meeting, which was held in the middle of February in the lecture hall of the Civil Engineering Building. Practice in the cage was started immediately after the meeting, with more than forty candidates out for the team.

Under the system of Alumni coaching which was adopted this year by the Athletic Association, Coach Eddie Hooper, who had coached the team successfully for the last eight or nine years, could not be secured. As soon as this was learned Athletic Director Murphy, assisted by the captain and manager of the team, started a hunt for some alumni who would be willing to coach the team in his spare moments. "Butts" Sutton, who finished a prominent career in baseball and lacrosse at the University in 1915, was seen and after some difficulty, persuaded to take charge of the team. Sutton has played baseball for a good number of years and knows the game well. He immediately took charge of the work-outs at the cage, where practice was held three times a week. The team went out to Homewood for out-door practice about the middle of March and practice was then held every day.

Practically the whole of last year's team is back again this year with the exception of two outfielders—"Doc" Cox and "Jack" Moriarty, both of whom are still in the Navy. "Dick" Benson, captain of the team last year, is again taking care of the backstopping for the team, with "Bill" Wood assisting him. They are both capable receivers and heavy sluggers as well. Purcell and Egerton are fighting it out for the initial sack position, with Purcell having a little the better of the argument. While Egerton is a much better hitter than Purcell, the latter fields his position in fine style and in addition is very fast on the bases.

Captain Littman, who played a stellar game at second base last year, will undoubtedly take care of this position again this year, with Harry Bloomsburg, another veteran from last year, playing shortstop. With these two experienced players next to each other many fast plays are expected to be made around the keystone sack. "Jack" Jones, last year's third baseman, is having a hot fight for this position with Sharretts, a freshman this year, who was captain of the City College team last year and played third there for several years. Sharrett seems to be the choice for the hot corner, however, with "Jack" Jones acting as utility infielder.

For the outfield positions there are "Charlie" Webb and Sickle left from last year with a lot of excellent material to pick from for the other positions. Egerton, who played on the team for several years before leaving College to join the Army, is a capable fielder and a slugger of ability. Knecht, a freshman, and Elmer Jones, Hopkins' star football player, are both heavy sluggers and capable of taking care of berths in the field. If Knecht develops into a pitcher, however, the three regular outfielders will probably be Webb, Jones and Egerton.

As to the pitching staff, the team received a hard blow when "Teddy" Welliver, the star pitcher of last year's team, was taken ill with the "flu" and forced to leave college just before baseball practice started. Welliver was counted on to pitch the majority of the games this year and his loss was felt greatly. However, Love and Judefind, from last year, are showing excellent form and unless their arms go back on them should make good this spring. "Bob" Owings, a Freshman from Friends School, also gives promise of developing into a capable twirler. Wainace, a southpaw from the Medical School, who has pitched college baseball before, has just come out, and will be a big help to the team. Vandermast and several new men are showing good form and should develop during the season.

MINOR SPORTS

T. Hubbard, 1922
SWIMMING TEAM
The swimming team of the past season was organized under the S. A. T. C. regime, and was known as the Johns Hopkins S. A. T. C. Swimming Team. At the organization meeting, at which twenty-five candidates appeared, Bascom Kennady was elected captain, and "Teddy" Gould, manager. After the disbanding of the S. A. T. C., the team returned to its former independent standing, and began training for an ambitious schedule. In midseason, due largely to the efforts of our energetic athletic director, Mr. Murphy, swimming was recognized as a minor sport. Coming after five years of independent status and struggle for recognition on the part of the members of the team, this action was most welcome.

The first meet of the season was with the crack Navy team, at Annapolis. As was to be expected, Hopkins was beaten, 41–9. "Bill" Reins succeeded in winning first place in the back-stroke, and also a third place, while the other point winners were Hall, Ginsberg and Gould. Just before the Navy meet, Kennady resigned the captaincy, and Gould acted as captain for the balance of the season.

The next meet found Hopkins pitted against her old rival in swimming, Swarthmore. This meet is always closely contested, and is considered the biggest meet of the year by both colleges. This year Hopkins went to Swarthmore with an exceptionally strong team and ran away with the meet, winning first place in every event except the plunge. The final score was Hopkins, 49; Swarthmore, 22. This victory was particularly sweet to Hopkins, for the first swimming team to officially represent the University did it in true Hopkins fashion, nearly every member of the team winning his "H."

At the time of writing, the end of the swimming season is fast approaching, and it is not likely that more than one or two more meets will be held. The prospects for next year are very bright, as only one man, Ginsberg, will be lost by graduation. The team this year consisted of the following men: Acting Captain and Manager Gould, Hall, Reins, Ginsberg, Evans, Call, Slinghuff and Leser.

Engineering Humor

For Sale: One pair of high-class, well-shined, officer's boots, with beautiful spurs. If not sold before Commencement, I shall be compelled, in spite of my countless other activities, to take up horse-back riding, in order to use them.—Erstwhile Lieut. Carl W. Schmidt.

"Why did Seebe join the R. O. T. C.?

"Mr. Chisholm, work at the board. You don't do any work at home."

"I think it's your turn, doctor."

"Will some darned fool please take his hat off the transom?"—Dr. Hulburt.

Johnny DeMarco will now sing, "When My Golden Bars Are Turned to Silver."
Ladies and Gentlemen, be introduced to “Wee Willy” Wickers with his winning ways.

Cook, Hancock, Rosenfeld, Taylor—can you wonder that they’re rough in manner and appearance? They got it from the salty air in their naval sea-going (?) days, when they sailed the good ship “Terra Firma.”

Join the class in Jig-Saw Puzzles, under guidance and direction of J. H. Bringhurst, Civil Engineering Department.

Could you imagine “Jerry” without the goatee—or Christie with it?

The following syllogism lingers (if nothing else) from the famous course of Philosophy I:

“No designing person is to be trusted.”

“Engineers are designing persons.”

“Therefore, no Engineer is to be trusted.”

Zahn has the honor of being the only Senior not A. W. O. L. in the S. A. T. C. He has our sympathy.
The Senior

They went walking on Goat Island
(N.B. — The extreme left: It makes the place famous)

M. E.'s

E. E.'s

Take a Trip—

At last! A great mystery solved!
Stopping at the place where most of the air brakes in the world are made.

They did go to their hotel once in a while.

Niagara Falls on the way.

A cold corner in Buffalo.
"If Truitt was born yesterday, when was Sonneborn?"—William Dodd Cook, Chief Jester.

"Mr. Seebe, you're as slow as God made molasses."

P. F. G.—Put the window down! I don't like the draft. But there was one draft he didn't avoid; viz., the S. A. T. C.

We understand that "Sonny" calls on a certain young lady not more than six evenings a week. Perhaps he leaves the other evening for her "steady regular."

"Slony"—Mr. Doub, you're an Engineer. Absolutely illiterate.

We also have our "Mutt" and "Jeff" in the persons of Schmidt and DeMarco."
"It's surprising how much good the follows get out of this course."—C. J. T. (meaning C. E. I.)

The profs. all have to make such admissions.

We don't blame "Johnny" DeMarco for being stuck on his spurs. When he goes to dances, everyone else gets stuck on them sooner or later.

We may not deserve much credit for passing multitudes of exams, in order to graduate. But we certainly deserve lots of credit for having survived "Dood" Cook's heavy fire of choice humor.

We have with us this evening Mr. Benjamin Thomas Truitt, Jr., "exponent of the art" of completing a course in Engineering with the least amount of Engineering.

The Civil Engineers made a tennis court of their classroom; the Mechanical Engineers played basket-ball in theirs; but the Electricals had the best form of recreation—they provided a bed whereon to obtain surcease from the wearisome labors of A. C. M'c'h'y.
Chromatic Calculus

Whenever Doctor Hulburt talks,
He draws with divers colored chalks;
Where curve and line will intertwine,
He uses colors eight or nine
To further his design.

A tangent traced in turquoise blue
Betrays the flex it passes through.
Ultramarine are cusps, I ween,
While foci blaze is scarlet sheen,
And asymptotes are green.

And thus the crafty students learn
With practical vision to discern
How maxima and minima
Alternate green and crimson are,
And yellow points are singular.

I would that other subjects might
Be blazoned in chromatic light,
That when my mind were disinclined
To search distinctions too refined
E'en yet I might decide aright,
Not being color-blind.

"I warn you that if you break this instrument, you'll pay 'liberally' for it."

"Get out! You girls don't belong to be in here. I've got to look after the welfare of the students."—Hancock, expert on housing problems.

See C. E. Keefer, C. E. (member of the C. E. Society)—advocate of free-love, Private, R. O. T. C. (inactive), etc.

What would happen if "Benny" Rosenfeld couldn't go to all the shows in town?

Since "Dave" has been Business Manager of the HULLABALOO, he sometimes unconsciously writes his name Sonneborn.

Zahn and Doub have lately been very enthusiastically tripping the light, fantastic toe—usually someone else's light, fantastic toe!
Could you imagine Zahn and "Holly" always amiable?

Engineering Motto: "I do U."

Important change in Faculty, effective January 1—F. W. Lee becomes instructor in Electrical Engineering, in place of F. W. Lieberknecht, defunct.

"Let's get the ball rolling, fellows."

Dehler had hard luck in the Army. He started as first sergeant, S. A. T. C., but had to descend to a "shave-tail-ancy."

FINIS
SINCE 1875 the name of Lemmert has stood for clothes refinement. Neither the ultra-conservative---the "old-fashioned"---nor the crude, the bizarre, stylings may be found here. You will find, indeed, the most recent dependable patterns in men’s outer wear. We keep in step with fashion.

We offer a wide choice of Suitings and Overcoat fabrics for the custom-trade. These are also to be had in ready-to-wear garments. The prices are extremely moderate.

pharmaceutically with the advanced thinkers and progressive physicians whose skill and brilliant achievements contribute so much to the glory and fame of Johns Hopkins demands the close cooperation of a well-trained staff of creative chemists, productive pharmacists and clear-headed business men.

That perfectly describes our laboratory organization; earnest workers who create, produce and distribute our "Quality Products".

My dear Mr. Read:

I take pleasure in expressing my appreciation of your efforts in connection with the 1918 issue of the "Hullabaloo" and wish to acknowledge as well the many courtesies extended. The assistance rendered by you was invaluable, and contributed greatly to the success of the book.

Let me again thank you for your fine cooperation as I am very much pleased with the book.

Most sincerely yours,
